Republicans Make Clean Sweep In County

STADL WINS OVER SIGMAN FOR ATTORNEY

Incumbent Defeats Democrat and Independent in 3-cornered Race

DEMOCRATS DEFEATED Four Normal Republican Precincts Throw Support to Hammersley

Republicans ran rampant in Outagamie county yesterday, sweeping every Republican candidate into office over the Democratic and Independent opposition. The county was as emphatically Republican with the state ticket as with the county offices and the voters here helped materially to swell the huge majority which the state gave to Philip LaFollette over Charles E. Hammersley, the Democratic candidate for governor.

The total vote cast in Outagamie county surpassed most expectations, but was far less than the 26,000 cast in the general election of 1928 or the 16,500 in the primary election last September. Approximately 14,000 votes were cast in the county yesterday.

The only contest that assumed the proportions of a race was between Stanley A. Stadl, Republican, F. J. Rooney, Democrat, and Samuel Sigman, Independent, for district attorney and when the smoke cleared away Stadl was far ahead of the field, leading Sigman by 1,373 votes and Rooney by 2,273. Sigman was defeated by Stadl for the Republican nomination at the primary in September but got back into the race as an Independent.

HAD EASY SAILING

The other Republican candidates had relatively easy sailing to defeat their Democratic opponents. Sheriff John Lappen, literally ran away from Martin Verhagen, winning by 4,965 votes, carrying almost all the precincts in the county. Lappen won the Republican nomination from four opponents in the primary. Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, the county's only woman officer, was swept back into office on the crest of a 4,107 majority. Her opponent, Peter J. Metz, whose home is in Kaukauna, made the strongest run among the Democrats, capturing several precincts in the neighborhood of his home. The only other Democrat on the county ticket was R. M. Connelly who unsuccessfully sought the office of surveyor now held by Frank M. Charlesworth, polling 2,559 votes while Charlesworth was getting 9,359.

John Hantschel, county clerk, and A. G. Koch, register of deeds, and after surviving the opposition of the primaries, had no one to oppose them in the general election and polled enormous votes, Hantschel getting 11,894 and Koch, 11,413. Sidney Shannon, clerk of the courts, had the easiest time of all, having no opposition in either the primary or the general election. He polled 11,246 votes yesterday.

STADL FAR AHEAD

All three candidates for district attorney received their support almost equally from city and county precincts, with Stadl carrying both. He led in the county by 831 votes over Sigman and 1,416 over Rooney. In the city his lead over Sigman was 604 votes and he was ahead of Rooney by 867 votes. Stadl carried three of the six wards in Appleton, losing the Third ward to Mr. Rooney and the other two to Sigman by narrow margins. Sigman's lead in the Sixth ward was only two votes and he had a margin of 35 in the Fifth ward.

At no time during the night, as returns from county precincts poured in, was Stadl's lead in jeopardy. He carried 29 of the county precincts

Four Others Seriously Injured in Tragedy at Madison Crossing

Madison —(P)— Three men were killed and four were seriously injured when a Milwaukee road passenger train struck a Wisconsin Telephone company truck at a crossing here today.

Donald Clark, Stouten, Kenneth Staunton, Columbus, and Charles R. Thieman, 31, Madison, were killed almost immediately. The injured are Norman Oren, Stouten; Casper Preslaski, Big Suamico; Ernest Atkinson Stouten, and Walter Bethke, Ripon. Oren was not expected to recover.

The bodies of Clark and Staunton were under the locomotive more than an hour after the accident.

DEMOCRATS LEAD IN NEBRASKA CONTESTS

Outcome of but One of Six Congressional Races in Doubt

Lincoln, Neb. —(P)— The outcome of but one of six congressional contests was in doubt in Nebraska today and in two of the others former Democratic members of the house of representatives had been elected over their Republican incumbent opponents.

The district still hanging in the balance was the second, Omaha, with Malcolm Baldrige, (R), leading Edward R. Burke (D), by a margin of 1,672 votes in the unofficial tabulation of the 252 precincts. The vote was Baldrige 33,733; Burke 33,111.

In this district alone was the liquor question an issue. Both candidates had expressed dissatisfaction with the present method of enforcement.

The elected congressmen gave Nebraska at least four Democrats in the house of representatives. Senator George W. Norris (R), was increasing his majority over former Senator Gilbert (D) returns from 1,505 of the 2,040 precincts gave Norris 179,156; Hitchcock 129,550. Vote was Hitchcock 129,550; Norris 179,425.

While the Republican state ticket seemed assured of election by comfortable majorities Governor Arthur J. Weaver (R) was still trailing former Governor Charles W. Bryan (D) with 504 of 2,040 precincts behind from the vote was Weaver 156,085; Bryan, 160,402.

STATE VOTERS FAVOR PART VETO REFERENDUM

Milwaukee —(P)— With returns from seven of the 71 Wisconsin counties completed, it was apparent today that Wisconsin voters approved two to one an amendment to the state constitution to permit the governor the power to veto of a part any appropriation bill.

The vote stood: For the amendment, 29,512; against 15,534. Governor-elect LaFollette had opposed the amendment in campaign speeches.

Dry Majority Cut Down In House As Election Result

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Wets and dries divided up about equally the senate seats in yesterday's election where prohibition was an issue, while the anti-prohibitionists cut into the preponderantly dry majority in the house.

Three states holding wet referenda—Illinois, Rhode Island and Massachusetts—went overwhelmingly for repeal.

The anti-prohibition forces made one of their biggest raids in Ohio, birthplace of the Anti-Saloon league. Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland Democrat, advocate of repeal of the eighteenth amendment, won over Senator McCulloch, Republican prohibitionist. He will be the first dry law opponent Ohio has sent to the senate in eight years.

In other senatorial contests where prohibition figured, the anti-put over James Hamilton Lewis in Illinois against the "personally dry"

100 MEN ARE ENTOMBED IN MINE IN OHIO

Coal Mine Is Set Afire After Being Swept by Gas Explosion

Athens, Ohio —(P)— A gas explosion swept through the Sunday Creek coal company mine Number 6 at Millfield, near here this afternoon. One hundred miners were reported to be trapped in the workings. The mine is on fire.

Three hundred men were in the mine when the explosion occurred. About half this number was brought out, many of them injured and suffering from the effects of the gas. Some of those trapped were said to be sealed behind a bar, a mile inside the mine.

The explosion shook the surrounding region. Scores of women and children flocked to the mine mouth. Calls went out immediately for mine rescue cars throughout the eastern Ohio coal field and doctors, nurses and ambulances were summoned from a wide radius.

Among those trapped in the mine are W. E. Titus, president of the Sunday Creek Coal company; Peter McKinley, former sheriff of Athens; and Howard Upson, both mine superintendents; and Hubert Lancaster, a civil and mining engineer of Nelsonville. The mine is a shaft operation.

The shaft is 250 feet deep and is of one level. It was not known if the shaft had been damaged. Volunteer rescue workers were making efforts to get into the fiery tunnel. The mine formerly was owned by the Poston interests of Athens but was acquired by the Sunday Creek company when the Hocking field was reorganized.

W. C. T. U. SAYS WETS WILL NOT TRIUMPH IN "FINAL CAMPAIGN"

Evanston —(P)— A statement issued at the headquarters of the National Women's Christian Temperance union, unsigned, declared "the wets will not be victorious in the final campaign."

"The next congress will be drier than the congress which enacted the Volstead act," said the statement. "We are sorry to lose some strength, but the brilliant success of the dries in west Pennsylvania are cheerful contrast against the wet strength in the already wet states of Rhode Island, Illinois and Massachusetts."

"We regret that the wets of Illinois are victorious in the referendum which may result in the repeal of the state prohibition law, a situation which will make it easier for bootleggers. Before the next election the wets will know that while they may win a battle now and then, they will not be victorious in the final campaign."

COAST GUARD CUTTER FINDS DRIFTING BOAT

Washington —(P)— Coast guard headquarters was informed today that an empty cabin boat, Salvation Lass, of Baltimore, had been found off Norfolk, Va.

The steamer, El Estero, reported to the coast guard that its crew boarded the Salvation Lass, a two-masted cabin boat, about 5:30 p. m. last night. There was no one aboard but a note was found which said the craft was the property of E. Kepner, Baltimore.

SAYS HUSBAND INDUCED HIM TO MURDER WOMAN

Los Angeles —(P)— Shortly after arresting Ben J. Brown, 27, Huntington Park glass worker, police said today he admitted slaying Mrs. Merle Ellis of Pasadena, last Sunday on an offer of $2,000 from her estranged husband, Emma, to kill her.

Brown signed an alleged confession and was held on charges of murder and robbery. He said he did not know at the time that the woman was Ellis wife.

Mrs. Ellis was found dead in her bed from shotgun wounds. Her 18-month-old son, sleeping beside her, was uninjured. Her husband presented proof that he had been at work the night of the slaying.

Police then began an investigation of his friends and arrested Brown. Brown was quoted as saying Ellis declared the woman had an incurable disease, which he was afraid of the glass worker declared all he got of the promised $2,000 was $2 in dimes.

Single Vote Will Decide Control Of State Senate

Gettleman Believed Key Man—Two Factions Each Hold Sixteen Votes

Madison —(P)— A virtual tie for control of the state senate existed today between Progressives and Conservatives on the basis of nearly complete election returns on senatorial contests.

The defeat of William H. Markham, Horicon, was regarded as the outstanding Progressive victory. Almost complete returns showed E. C. Clifford, Democrat, a victor by about 1,500 votes. Clifford received an open endorsement by Progressives. Markham voted consistently with Conservatives during his two senate terms.

On the basis of Tuesday's election, the present lineup in the senate would give Progressives and conservatives each 16 dependable votes. Of the 33 members of the senate, Bernhard Gettleman, Milwaukee, is regarded as the key man in the fight for control.

Reilly Wins In Campaign For Congress

Milwaukee —(P)— A Wisconsin Democrat will go to congress, to occupy the seat he once held before the Phalan. Of 11 house members became a Republican institution.

Michael K. Reilly, Fond du Lac was elected in the Fifth district. Phil Lehner, Progressive-Republican, of Princeton. His victory was the big surprise of the election.

It was a close vote, the returns from 178 of 185 precincts giving Reilly 23,868 to 23,123 for Lehner. Each man carried half the counties in the district.

In eight other districts Progressives were elected. Conservative Republicans retained their two seats, Congs. Schafer and Stafford of Milwaukee, winning in the Fourth and Fifth. In both cases, unanticipated Socialist strength kept the result in doubt for many hours. Stafford squeezed through by less than 500 votes.

The definite makeup of the next delegation will be:
(X Designates incumbents)
X-Henry Allen Cooper, Racine, First.
X-Charles A. Kading, Watertown, second.

X-John M. Nelson, Madison, third.
X-John C. Schafer, Milwaukee, Fourth.
X-William H. Stafford, Milwaukee, Fifth.

Michael K. Reilly, Fond du Lac, Sixth.
Gardner R. Withrow, LaCrosse, Seventh.
Gerald J. Boileau, Wausau, Eighth.
X-George J. Schneider, Appleton, Ninth.

X-James A. Frear, Hudson, Tenth.
X-H. B. Peavey, Washburn, Eleventh.

Mr. Cooper, dean of the house, will begin his 16th term. He is 80 years old. His district showed the esteem in which he is held by giving him a plurality of about 15 to 1 over William G. Kiernan, Independent Democrat.

Nelson, Peavey and Schneider were unopposed. Boileau and Withrow won by handsome margins. A last-minute drive to have the Seventh district voters write in the name of Cong. Merlin Hull, defeated for re-nomination, found little support outside of Jackson-co.

Sixth district stalwarts from Lehner and by some of the more determined wets, who were not entirely sure that Lehner stood for repeal. Winnebago and Fond du Lac co. really assured him a victory.

Scant Bearish Activities On Market After Election

New York —(P)— Equity shares, influenced by the widespread Democratic victories at the polls, were influenced adversely, for the stock market displayed pronounced weakness today.

The day's session, however, did not differ appreciably from dozens of its recent predecessors. Trading was dull and sluggish, and numerous declines of $1 to $3 a share, and some from $4 to $10, reflected lack of support rather than extensive liquidation.

There was a feeling in brokerage circles that professional traders may have done some short selling on the basis of the returns. Abrupt declines in some of the higher priced shares tended to confirm that belief.

Inasmuch as extensive Democratic gains had been rather confidently forecast in Wall-st, the results were not particularly surprising, and may have been rather thoroughly dis-

Youthful Governor - Elect Hails Triumph as Great Party Victory

Madison —(P)— In 2,382 precincts out of the state's 2,826 LaFollette had 367,299; Hammersley 161,642.

The younger LaFollette defeated Charles E. Hammersley, the Democratic nominee, by nearly 3 to 1, although Hammersley picked up some support from stalwart Republican districts.

With 2,469 of 2,826 precincts reporting to the Associated Press, the vote was: LaFollette 354,472; Hammersley 160,039.

The sons of Robert M. LaFollette have carried on for him. Philip will be the next governor of Wisconsin. Robert, Jr., is United States senator.

In the short space of five years, Wisconsin has visited upon these two the honors it took their father more than 30 years to achieve.

At the age of 33, Philip will assume the office his father first won in 1890, and he will be one of the two youngest governors in the United States.

While the election was a landslide for LaFollette, there were some aspects about it that indicated Hammersley had made inroads into territory nominally Republican.

CARRIES SHEBOYGAN CO
Balanced against the LaFollette leads in Walworth and Rock co. were close margins in Fond du Lac and Winnebago co. To the east of them, Hammersley made his only sweep. He carried Sheboygan co., the home of Governor Kohler, Brown-co, once Democratic, gave him a good vote.

BIBLE READING IN ARKANSAS SCHOOLS FAVORED AT POLLS

Little Rock —(P)— Arkansas, on the face of incomplete returns, yesterday approved a constitutional amendment to require the reading of a part of the Bible daily in state schools up to and including high schools.

Gov. Harvey Parnell, Democrat, was re-elected over J. O. Livesey, Republican, and Lawrence Wilson, Democrat, over-whelmed C. H. Harding, for lieutenant governor. Those were the only state offices in which Democratic nominees had rivals. Senator Joseph T. Robinson and all seven Democratic congressional nominees, including Mr. Otis T. Winslow, were unopposed.

With Mrs. Pearl Penden O'Field, John E. Miller, Democrat, was sent to the house from the Second district.

GET OFFERS TO HELP IN DRIVE TO FEED POOR

Men Volunteer as Workers and Captains in Campaign Next Week

Sponsors of the Home Aid campaign which will raise $25,000 for the relief of unemployed and her unfortunate in Appleton the coming winter have been much encouraged by the large number of persons who have volunteered to help solicit the money. It is a very rare campaign indeed in which persons volunteer to act as solicitors and even more rare in which there are volunteers for the responsible and arduous duties of team captain, but in this instance there have been volunteers for both tasks.

Sponsors of the drive take this to mean that the people of Appleton are thoroughly sold on the worth of the campaign and are ready to help the limit to help those who cannot help themselves. It is an indication that men are ready not only to contribute generously of their money but of their time and effort to help.

The general campaign to raise the $25,000 will get underway next Monday morning. Preparations for the task of seeing the persons who should contribute are almost completed and everything will be in readiness for the opening of the drive next week.

The money secured by the campaign will be used by the five co-operating charities to relieve suffering during the fall and winter. None of the money will be used for administrative expenses so that contributions may be sure that every dollar they give will be used for the purpose for which it was intended.

ALLEN CONCEDES DEFEAT IN KANSAS

Hoover Spokesman in Senate Loses to McGill in Spirited Race

Tupelo, Kas. —(P)— Senator Henry J. Allen one of the Hoover spokesmen in the United States senate, today conceded defeat by George McGill, of Wichita, Democrat, in a spirited race which developed one of the major upsets of the nation's balloting yesterday.

While the result was close, McGill appeared safely elected as the first Democrat to be sent to the senate from normally Republican Kansas since 1912.

Senator Arthur Capper scored an easy victory over former Gov. Jonathan M. Davis, Democrat, to win a third term.

McGill, prominent attorney, is an opponent of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act and has declared publicly he would not vote to ratify any senator who has received either his nomination or election through the excessive expenditure of money.

He condemned the tariff act as failing to aid the Kansas farmers, while at the same time increasing the cost of living.

Frank (Chief) Hauke Republican candidate for governor, was closely pressed by Harry Woodring, Democrat.

The Republicans returned seven representatives to congress, while Congressman W. A. Ayres of Wichita, Democrat, was re-elected.

POSSIBLE TIE LOOMS BEFORE MAJOR GROUPS

Shouse Sees Democratic Control in House — Probably in Senate

REDUCE G. O. P. LEADS
No Definite Indication as to Which Party Will Rule House

BULLETIN
Washington —(P)— Joust Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, today said that election returns indicate an "assured Democratic majority in the house" and that "the Democrats will probably organize the next senate."

BY CECIL B. DICKSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
The Democrats were driving toward a possible tie in the senate on election returns this afternoon and appeared headed also for something approximating a tie in the house.

Forging into Republican senate strongholds, Democrats already had captured seats in Ohio, Kansas, Massachusetts, South Dakota, Oklahoma, West Virginia, Colorado and Illinois and lost but one—in Iowa.

They needed the two remaining doubtful—in Kentucky and Minnesota—to bring the Democratic senate strength to 48, exactly one-half of the total membership and they were leading in both of those disputed states.

Such an outcome would leave the lineup of the new senate 48 Democrats, 47 Republicans and 1 Independent. The single Farmer-Labor senator, Shipstead of Minnesota, usually votes with the Republicans on matters of organization.

The Democrats had gained control of 31 house seats, now Republicans. They needed only 57 more to obtain the upper hand, having retained all but one seat held in the present congress.

Democratic nominees were leading in about the requisite number of districts on the early afternoon returns but there was no definite indication who would nose out ahead.

In New York and Illinois, the Democratic strength assumed landslide proportions. It pushed Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt along by a 700,000 plurality to the reelection so much desired by those who want to see him named for the presidency in 1932. Returning James Hamilton Lewis to the senate, it denied with thundering emphasis the senatorial aspirations of Ruth Hanna McCormick.

In Republican Connecticut it elevated a Democrat, Wilbur L. Cross, to the governorship. In Republican Pennsylvania it whittled to slender proportions the lead for Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee for governor. In Republican Idaho it bestowed a Democratic governorship upon O. E. Ross.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM LEAD
The actual house changes from Republican to Democrat recorded in this morning's figures numbered less than 20, but in more than 50 other Republican districts Democrats were leading. A net shift of 53 would mean a Democratic house. As matters stood, the leaders of both sides were claiming ultimate victory.

Several of the ranking Republican house leaders were in trouble. Even Speaker Longworth was not yet out of danger in the Cincinnati district he has represented so long and Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee, who gave his name to the new Republican tariff law, was trailing a Democrat in Oregon. For a time Republican Leader Tilson's Connecticut district was in the doubtful column, too, but he came through with a shorn plurality.

With the result so finely balanced, it appeared just possible that the full returns from the one state unheard from last night might have to be awaited before the outcome was apparent. Kentucky, which has been a battleground for both senate and house, does not begin to count her ballots until the day following election. Her election officials were to meet at 10 o'clock this morning to begin their canvass and there was a prospect of a wait of hours before comprehensive totals could be announced.

FOR DRY LAW CHANGE

Hosted by the warring candidates, three prohibition referenda had their place on yesterday's ballots and in every case the mounting returns showed the advocates of repeal far ahead. Her vote complete, Rhode Island had spoken more than three to one against the dry amendment. Illinois was showing a total that way on the same question, while Massachusetts apparently had voted by an expansive margin to repeal her state enforcement act.

Even before the returns were complete political leaders were trying to assay the inner significance

Sweeping Victory Won By Lewis In Illinois Race

DEMOCRAT IS ELECTED TO SENATE BERTH

Majority Over Ruth McCormick Approaches 700,000 Mark

Chicago—(P)—The plurality by which James Hamilton Lewis won the Illinois senatorial contest, apparently carrying with him much of the state Democratic ticket, increased with every tabulation of the votes cast yesterday and gave promise of exceeding 700,000.

The earlier estimate of 500,000 was passed this morning when only 5,666 of the state's 7,109 precincts had reported. At that time his lead over the Republican nominee, Ruth McCormick, was 534,146 and he was maintaining his strength in all sections of the state.

The tabulation at that time showed 1,112,880 for Lewis, 518,731 for McCormick and 57,553 for the independent dry candidate, Mrs. Lottie O'Neil.

At the same time, the returns showed that the voters expressed sentiment against the 18th amendment and the Illinois prohibition law, and in favor of permitting beverages which a referendum proposal described as "not in fact intoxicating, as determined in accordance with the laws of the respective states. The vote: 333 precincts for repeal of the 18th amendment 122,836; against 50,955; 818 precincts for repeal of the state prohibition act 114,752; against 43,887; 861 precincts for amending the Volstead act 111,494; against 47,154.

G. O. P. LOSES 4 SEATS
The returns indicated that the Republicans had a net loss of four seats in congress, having apparently lost six places, gained one and regained a seat lost through the death of Edward King of the 15th district a year ago. Republican congressmen who apparently were defeated were: DePriest, First, Sprout, Second, Doyle, Fourth, who did not run for re-election, and whose successor on the ticket was beaten; Michaelson, Seventh, beaten in the primary and his conqueror, downed today, Chundblom, Tenth; and Denison, Twenty-fifth. They gained a seat by apparently defeating Kunz in the eighth.

Mrs. McCormick had agreed, if elected, to abide by the verdict of the people on the prohibition referendum, whereas Lewis argued that his campaign in itself presented the liquor issue and that the referendum was therefore unnecessary. Mrs. O'Neil ran as a "bone dry" candidate, backed by the Anti-Saloon league. Mrs. O'Neil, charged that Mrs. McCormick had changed her position on prohibition between the April primary and the election. She added that "so far as prohibition is concerned the state is as well off with Mr. Lewis as it would be with her."

Mrs. McCormick, who contended that economic ills and keeping America out of the world court were the issues rather than prohibition, smiled in defeat, congratulated the winner, and then came right back with a statement she would, as a congresswoman "assist in a solution of the present difficulties which concern the people."

But Lewis did not smile. Instead he paid Mrs. McCormick a high tribute for her courage.

YOUNGSTERS SEEK $8.50 CLAIM FROM CITY FOR FOOTBALL

The docket for the council meeting tonight is full of weighty problems—like purchasing an incinerator, and re-evaluating the city—but none of these will draw the audience that an $8.50 claim for the youngsters of St. Mary school are expected to turn out en masse to back up their claim against the city for the football ruined several weeks ago by the wheels of a city truck. The ball cost $10 originally, but the boys have "knocked off" $1.50 because the pignish had been kicked "51.50 worth" before it was damaged.

ute for his "valorous fight" and declared he did not like the "aspect of joy toward the defeat of a woman."

LEWIS PICTURESQUE
Lewis is no stranger in the senate. The 64-year-old attorney has long been a picturesque figure in American politics. He was named by the Illinois legislature in 1918 and served until 1919, attracting widespread public attention, not only because of his dynamic personality and ability as an orator, but because of anecdotes of his personal appearance. He was born in Virginia and is known far and wide as "one of the most polite men in America."

The Illinois Democratic landslide indicated that Congressman Oscar DePriest, the nation's only Negro congressman, would be retired, and developed close contests in the race for Illinois' two Republican congressmen-at-large, Richard Yates of Springfield, and Frank L. Smith of Dwight. They were trailing William Dietrich of Beardstown and Walter Nesbit of Belleville, their Democratic opponents, with returns too incomplete to forecast definitely the winners.

The returns indicated that the Democrats had also won the only two state offices at stake. Mrs. Eva B. Baifort and Edward J. Barrett were running well ahead of Francis G. Blair and Clarence Buck, the Republican candidates for superintendent of public instruction and state treasurer, respectively. The Democrats apparently also made a clean sweep of Cook county officers.

Apparently the proposal to allow women to serve on juries met with approval.

SPECTACULAR CAREER
Chicago—(P)—The senate has regained its Chesterfield of dress, its exponent of the grand manner—James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois. Illinois Democracy sweeping him into office in the bye-election balloting has written an interesting epilogue to a political career that makes fiction-like reading.

Lewis, the fastidious, was a longshoreman at one time when he was struggling upward; even in that calling, he maintained his immaculateness off duty.

He was born in Danville, Va., in the Old Dominion, the son of a Confederate soldier, Major John Cable Lewis. He came to Chicago in the early 80's, then went on to Seattle to seek his fortune. That was where he worked as a longshoreman. He studied law and was admitted to the bar and latter was elected as congressman-at-large from Washington.

When his term ended he came to Chicago in 1930 to handle the legal

U. Of W. Athletic Council Won't O.K. Charity Game

Madison—(P)—The University of Wisconsin athletic council has refused to sanction the proposed football for charity between the university and Marquette university. President Glenn Frank announced here today.

Dr. Frank's complete statement concerning the council's decision was as follows:

"In view of the expressed policy of the Western Intercollegiate conference regarding post-season games and in view of the fact that, as a state supported institution, the University of Wisconsin would not be free to restrict the proceeds of a benefit contest to any one city, the athletic council does not consider feasible the proposed post-season game for the Milwaukee charity fund."

The game was proposed by a Milwaukee newspaper several weeks ago. The suggestion met with approval on the part of Marquette football authorities.

Prospects for the game received a setback however, when the Big Ten athletic board refused to permit a shift of the Northwestern university Notre Dame game from Evanston to Soldiers field, Chicago. The purpose of the proposed change in locale was the same as in the negotiations for the Wisconsin-Marquette game.

Although respecting the rules of the Big Ten, Gov. Walter Kohler last week said he hoped that the game between Wisconsin and Marquette would be played. Every means should be utilized to lift the burden of the unemployed and poor, the governor said.

START OFFICIAL COUNT OF BALLOTS THURSDAY

The official canvass of the ballots cast in the election Tuesday will start Thursday morning at the office of John E. Hantschel, county clerk. Mr. Hantschel, Supervisor Peter Rademacher of Appleton and another supervisor will do the counting, which probably will be completely late Friday afternoon. The third member of the board of canvassers had not yet been named by Mr. Hantschel at noon Wednesday.

affairs of several large corporations. The rank of colonel of which the senator elect is proud, was awarded him during the Spanish-American war.

PICKED BY LEGISLATURE
Ten years after his return to Chicago he was chosen by the legislature, one of the last to be named in this manner in Illinois, as United States senator. In the senate, his picturesque whiskers and wavy hair, his mannerisms of dress and affable speech as well as a keenness inappreciated made him a national figure. He became the first whip of the senate and worked tirelessly for legislation sought by President Wilson. In 1918 he was active on the senate finance committee and was sent to Europe to make observations of movement of supplies to American forces. At Chateau Thierry while engaged in this duty, he was slightly wounded.

At the expiration of his senate term he ran again but was defeated by Medill McCormick, husband of his opponent yesterday. Two years later, in 1920, he was again loser in an election race, this time for the governorship against Len Small.

Since then until the present campaign, his activities were confined politically to his own party. His gallantry did not bar him from pursuing a strenuous campaign against his two feminine opponents and his gift of ridicule was used particularly against Mrs. McCormick to whom he referred as "the lady" and "the dollar princess." Col. Lewis is 64 years old.

G. O. P. CANDIDATES AHEAD IN MICHIGAN

Stalwart Republicanism Withstands Assault of Optimistic Democrats

Detroit—(P)—Michigan's stalwart Republicanism has stood an optimistic Democratic assault in yesterday's general election, with the result that, barring unexpected an upset in belated returns in one congressional district, the political complexion of the state will remain unchanged during the next two years.

State-wide races were decided before returns from half of the state's 3,317 precincts had been reported. United States Senator James Couzens rolled up an impressive lead over his Democratic opponent, Thomas E. A. Wendock with indications of an eventual majority of 350,000 or more. In 2,906 precincts the vote was: Couzens, 241,457; Wendock 92,994.

William A. Comstock, Democratic candidate for governor, who campaigned as a proponent of repeal of the 18th amendment, dropped 90,000 votes behind Wilbur M. Brucker, Republican, in half the outside precincts and conceded his defeat even before hearing from Detroit, where his greatest hope lay. In 2,046 precincts Brucker polled 238,725 votes and Comstock 197,080.

Returns from 12 of the 13 congressional districts early today were sufficient to insure election of Republicans. In the Second district, where Edward E. Piensdorf, Democrat, made a vigorous assault, the incumbent, Rep. Earl C. McInerney, was 8,000 votes ahead in 149 of the 206 precincts. Republicans were claiming this district and a clean sweep of the state.

Drunk Fined
Mike Lyons, St. Louis, was fined $10 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Wednesday morning when he pleaded guilty of drunkenness. He was arrested Monday evening at the corner of Appleton and North-sts when he created a disturbance and residents called police.

Hold-Up Victim Saves $200 By Quick Action

Quick thinking and just as quick action on the part of Chester Sawall, Appleton, saved $200 from a trio of bandits who held him up on Highway 10 in the Dale swamp, west of Appleton, about 7:30 last night.

Sawall, driving to Appleton with a truckload of potatoes from Waukegan, was stopped by three men. As they approached he became suspicious and, removing his purse from his pocket, threw it over his shoulder, hoping it would pass through the window behind him into the potatoes and escape unnoticed. However, the pocketbook missed its mark and fell behind his coat collar. He stiffened his neck and held it there while one of the men searched him and took $3 in cash. One of the trio remained in the car and two of them, each with a revolver, held Sawall up. After taking the $3 the men jumped into their car, a Buick coupe, and fled toward Appleton. Sawall immediately notified Sheriff John Lappen, who started scouring the roads but was unable to find the car.

This is the fourth holdup of this nature on roads in that section of the county in the last month.

PLAN PROGRAM OF FARM ACTIVITIES

Committee, State and County Workers Discuss Plans at Meeting

Plans for activities during the winter were discussed at a meeting of the county agricultural committee at the courthouse this morning. R. A. Amundson, of the state department of agriculture, and Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones, of the state home economics department, attended the meetings. Reports were given by Gus Sell, county agent and Miss Harriet Thompson, county club leader.

Miss Thompson outlined plans for a program among home economics clubs in rural districts. This program will start next week. Mr. Sell outlined plans for a series of soil tests within the next three weeks, and also plans for a series of contagious abortion control meetings in January. Both the leaders discussed the 4-H club program. The committee also discussed its budget for the next two years.

Another meeting will be held in December.

PHIL'S HOME PRECINCT GIVES HIM MAJORITY

Madison—(P)—Philip LaFollette's precinct gave him a majority Tuesday after voting against him in the Primary election. The governor-elect polled 280 votes as compared with 217 for Charles Hammersley, Demc. at.

Gov. Walter Kohler, who carried the precinct in the Primary, was given four complimentary votes. The prohibition party's candidate for governor polled 22 votes. LaFollette's precinct is the third of the 10th ward—in an exclusive residential district.

Individual Star System Returns To Movieland

BY JESSIE HENDERSON.

Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press Hollywood, Calif.—It's an all wind from Wall Street that blows nobody any good, and, in addition to slowing up production in Hollywood, what the stock market has done to this town is to stage a comeback of the star system. The producers have just finished jubiling over the decline of the star system when here it is, bright and smiling, in our midst again.

For a multiplicity of reasons the stars rather lost their grip on the producers' throats when the gelatin began to gubber. But the slump in the stock market together with the resultant business depression has proved that you can't keep a stock market afloat. Every time the stock market gets a fresh lick in the shins, the stars stand more firmly on their feet and what spells disaster to the speculator is likely to spell unexpected prosperity to the twinkler.

PUBLIC SELECTS PICTURES

Edward H. Griffith, the Pathe director who made "Paris Bound" and "Hohday" flow along so smoothly, was the first to point out this economic phenomenon—which he did this very afternoon. "People are naturally economizing on their expenditures for entertainment," observed Mr. Griffith, who, an ex-newspaperman, is among the most observant people in the cinema capital, "and this means that they go to a picture once or twice a week where they formerly went three or four times. This in turn means that, people nowadays don't just go to a picture, they shop round to find exactly the picture they want to see.

"As between pictures with or without some well known star in the cast, they choose the picture with. They are choosing personality first, plot second. At the moment, pictures are not sold to the public on their titles so much as on the personality of the leading man or woman. The star system therefore, is enjoying a revival."

And, though Mr. Griffith did not say so, how? Instead of trudging sofly, listening for the dull thud of the axle, the stars now stride down Hollywood blvd like conquerors. It's a safe bet that as the stock market waxes temperamental, so will Hollywood, and in this region a delightfully tempestuous winter is already predicted.

SCHNEIDER GIVES COMMITTEE $100

Contribution to Republican Group Only Campaign Expense

BY RUBY A. BLACK Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Filing of pre-election expense accounts by Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton, A. A. Nevak of Juneau, and William J. Kershaw of Milwaukee completed the campaign of Wisconsin candidates for Congress with this section of the federal corrupt practices act.

Rep. Schneider, who was unopposed in Tuesday, reported that his only expense of election was $100 he contributed to the Republican State Central Committee. All the Wisconsin "progressive" candidates reported contributions to this committee except Gerald J. Boileau of Wausau, eighth district, who defeated Rep. Edward E. Browne in the Republican primary, and Philip Lehner of Princeton, who was nominated to succeed the late Florian Lampert of Oshkosh in the sixth district.

Kershaw, Democrat who opposed Rep. John C. Schafer in the fourth district, reported receiving $90 in contributions to the campaigns of Democratic candidates in Milwaukee county and $65 for automobile hire.

Nowak, Democrat who opposed Rep. Charles A. Kading of Watertown in the second district, reported spending $520, of which $250 was for railroad fare and gasoline and oil, $150 for printing, and $120 for postage.

WISCONSIN WEATHER Generally fair tonight and Thursday; colder in east and extreme south portion tonight; slightly warmer in extreme west portion Thursday.

GENERAL WEATHER The low pressure area which was centered over western Lake Superior yesterday has moved rapidly eastward and now overlies the north Atlantic coast. It has caused general showers in the New England states and St. Lawrence Valley and snow flurries in the Lake region. This disturbance is followed by a strong "high" now centered over the upper Missouri Valley, with Williston, N. D., reporting a barometer of 30.76 inches. This high pressure area is bringing fair weather to all the central and western portions of the country and much colder to the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys, with 15 to 20 degrees falls in temperature reported from many stations. Continued fair weather is expected in this section tonight and Thursday, with colder tonight.

BAY WINS SEAT IN ASSEMBLY FROM 2ND COUNTY DISTRICT

Progressive Candidate Defeats Incumbent for Office

John Rohan, the so-called "baby" legislator who was swept into the state assembly in the South campaign two years ago, was defeated yesterday by William Bay, Kaukauna, who had the support of the Progressive wing of the Republican party. They were candidates for the assembly from the Second Outagamie district.

Rohan, whose home is in Buchanan, received 2,855 votes while Bay was given 3,323.

DOUBT REPORTS OF ARTHRITIS CURES

American Specialists Skeptical Over Messages from Vienna

Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press New York—(C.P.A.)—American specialists, commenting on reports from the Barnhartzigen Bruders hospital of Vienna of a high percentage of cures in cases of arthritis by the use of caustic and oxycholin, today expressed themselves as convinced by experience that these drugs are ineffective. They said that while the use of the drugs would do no physical harm, their failure to bring positive results might create in patients a feeling that their cases were hopeless.

A representative of one of the largest and best-known arthritis clinics in New York today explained the position taken by New York doctors.

"For many years," he said, "it was suspected that arthritis was caused by an infection, or infections. This theory is now generally accepted. It is treated as an infection in this clinic. No single treatment is in itself satisfactory."

"It is only by a combination of methods that we can make headway against the infection. Infected foci, teeth, tonsils, sinuses, prostate, intestinal tract, and so on may harbor organisms capable of causing arthritis."

The head of this clinic said that he knew of attempts to cure arthritis by the administration of sulphur, the most important constituent of caustic, as far back as ten years ago, and that he himself had experimented with it, only to find that it was of little value.

"This drug has the effect of building up resistance in the patient, of increasing his strength, as a stimulant, but it cannot cure arthritis," said. "There are too many possible causes."

In Vienna outstanding inductors of caustic are Dr. Robert Latzel, head of the Barnhartzigen Bruders hospital, and Richard Barwig, head of the government Heilmittel institute.

Barwig, with Richard Greize, who supervised the caustic composition, supervises government production of the drug. Dr. Greize is a former co-worker with Wasserman.

According to Dr. Latzel, he has effected more than four hundred cures including one Paris-American woman painter, Dr. Greize in talking of the use of caustic, said that it was employed in the Reichkrankenhaus at Copenhagen and in Stockholm.

Wild Oklahoma Oil Well Sets River Afire

NEA Oklahoma City Bureau
This striking panoramic picture shows the wild gusher in the midst of an oil field near the heart of Oklahoma. City that drenched the neighborhood with oil and that threatened for a time to cause a city-wide conflagration. At the right the gusher can be seen, just before it was finally capped after desperate efforts, throwing up a 300-foot plume of oil; at the left are clouds of smoke from the North Canadian river, where a great film of oil had caught fire, burning bridges and threatening water front property. Hundreds of men worked frantically to prevent this fire from spreading to the gusher and showering the city with flaming oil and finally extinguished it with chemicals.

LA FOLLETTE AND THE FU-TURE OF THE STATE

Mr. LaFollette has been elected and thus will become the chief executive of the state at an age—33 years—when most men are beginning the toilsome climb up the first few rungs of the ladder of accomplishment. His success is one of the incongruities of democracy with its asserted but oft forgotten principle of equality in rights and opportunity to all. He was elected because the people trusted his name, a thing he inherited, and because they cared more for that than for a record however good. He will displace a man who, as time mellows the judgment and after the shoutings and the tumults have died out, will stand as one of the state's most able executives because he quietly but with force and capability executed the duties of his office with fair regard for all. The people have been ungrateful and inconsiderate but the fickleness of popularity is one of the things that goes with public life. That is past history and the state must always look to the future. What is gone may serve well for instructive purposes but it must not trip or confuse the onward march.

Wisconsin has suffered a great deal under some Progressive administrations. It has gained a great deal under others. Progress in government belongs to no particular party or faction. Neither does it belong to any particular name. Each administration should be judged upon its record although the people do not always so judge it.

It is no exaggeration to say that Wisconsin has lost tens of millions of dollars in investment, tens of thousands of population, and the prosperity which those items signify, because of the reputation it has gained in the nation since 1920. The Progressives say that the regulars have maligned the state and misrepresented the facts to the rest of the country, have painted the state in wild and untrue colors and are responsible for the losses that have ensued. The regulars say that these losses are the natural result of the latter-day Progressive program, that their rule has been one of misgovernment, in actual fact socialism, and that Wisconsin's reputation abroad has come from these policies and the threat of their extension.

Those who remember the political history of Wisconsin of thirty years ago at the time it first came under Progressive control, will remember that no such difficulty was presented and that the standing of the state in the nation was far different then than it was four years ago when Mr. Blaine quit the executive office. The nation then looked at Wisconsin as a state whose people had taken careful stock of their government, found it wanting in important particulars and had gone about the work of reconstruction ably, sanely and practically. The first decade of Progressive rule in Wisconsin not only lost nothing to the state but brought to it respect and confidence. The appeal then was always to men's better judgment, to ideas of fairness and the right, with honest administration of public affairs, and the induction of men of capacity in office to shoulder the tasks.

What fair student of Wisconsin's past and familiar with the facts will make any such assertion concerning the six years from 1921 to 1927 when Mr. Blaine was governor? Under his leadership the appeal was not to the just or to the fair but was a sinister and intemperate appeal to the bigotry in government that arises from the clash of classes. It was a denouncement of men for having different opinions, however honest. It was a constant attempt to divide the state into two separate camps and with artful stimulation of distrust and even hatred to make the camps permanent.

Those who were politically opposed to Mr. Blaine were even denied fair hearings before members of the legislature or treated cavalierly and with contempt. Constructive measures were sorely lacking. Many were appointed to office seemingly for their political influence and without regard to their fitness; and even the judiciary was not immune. Appeals to emotionalism were the order of the day. As a result, a strong, compact and powerful political machine was constructed and kept in operation. The loss that Wisconsin suffered came through those six years and during a period when ability in the administration of state affairs was noticeable for its absence.

If Mr. LaFollette chooses to conduct his office in the same way it is difficult to see how similar results can be avoided. Most men cannot be driven with whip or spur, abuse or intimidation; neither can they be expected to respect a government without ideals and operated for the purpose of perpetuating its leaders in power.

Mr. LaFollette's ability is an unknown factor. But he has indicated a trait in his campaign quite too rare in Progressive circles. He has not been personally abusive. He has not been vindictive. He has not denounced men because they did not see things the same way he saw them. He has been willing to admit that upon most questions affecting the policy of the state there is room for honest difference of opinion. Such a trait of character will be of material assistance to him in office. It will go some distance at least to correct a very prevalent notion concerning the purposes of the Progressives.

No resident of Wisconsin wants to hurt the state. No one can do so without hurting himself. That applies from the chief executive down and must be apparent to all. It should be equally apparent that everyone cannot have his way, that the choice of policy is often a close and many times a vexatious question, that when a policy of state is determined upon by the lawmakers, if done upon careful survey of all factors with an attitude of fairness and an honest purpose, without the intent of penalizing anyone or fomenting discord and turmoil, it will probably be received by all in good grace as the best that can be done under the circumstances. If the Blaine attitude of belligerency is to be maintained it will be met by belligerency. Strife without purpose begets nothing but strife. A continuation of that policy will mean only a continuation of extensive building just over the Illinois border, where already too many of Wisconsin's industries are located, an enduring monument to thoughtless policies that anyone may see from a passing train.

MICHIGAN HAS A REAL UNIVERSITY

Snarled all up in the red tape of the Western Conference the University of Michigan was in doubt whether it could agree to play the University of Detroit a post-season football game and donate the proceeds to help good men and women who are in distress, a condition that may become painfully acute before the winter is over. But the authorities at the University of Michigan are awake and resourceful. They were determined to help. And where there is a will a way is not so extremely difficult to find.

University of Michigan has written Governor Green that it will send him a draft for its entire receipts at one of the big games on its regular schedule so that he may disburse it this winter where most needed. University of Michigan wasn't afraid of "dangerous precedents" or any other of the lame and ambiguous language that may be used by faculty committees in failing to realize either the conditions prevailing in some of the larger cities or the responsibilities of our great universities to the rest of the people. It determined to set a helpful precedent, one that might start opening other pocketbooks. It has become responsive to a situation toward which others may find it easier to close the eyes if the heart is already indifferent.

The hope is that others may follow its leadership.

Aside from a few African species, the 100 known forms of cactus are restricted to America.

According to the last census, there are 1,485,062 Swedes in the United States.

The Scandinavian languages are Swedish, Norwegian and Danish.

Bears are nearly all left-handed. A wild bear will practically always throw its weight on the right paw and work with its left.

The term "bisque" in golf, means a handicap, with a stipulated number of strokes to be taken at the option of the recipient.

MAYBE it's over... we dunno... too sleepy to remember... seven precincts to come and it's only one fifteen a. m. we feel slighted... the crowd around the office was about one tenth the size of the primary mob... and not very excited... glad we wrote most of the column this morning... we could have gotten the paper out a lot earlier and still not have been wrong... seems to have been a field day for the Democrats in some states... say a good gag somewhere but we'll save it for tomorrow... we'd have to walk ten feet to look it up... thassall for tonight... we mean this morning...

And now that we've explained the election, we can get back to the regular run of things.

SAYS THE BROADWAY GOSSIP: Greta Garbo is going back to Sweden for keeps... Clara Bow is running around with Maxie Rosenbloom, astic champ... a new song is stampeding Manhattanites: "We Ain't Had So Much Fun Since We Nailed the Baby to the Floor"... lovely little thing, isn't it?

How early and often did you vote yesterday?

Or are you one of those people who thought it wouldn't make any difference anyway?

Today's Anniversary

GUY FAWKES DAY

On Nov. 5, 1605, the attempt of Guy Fawkes, an English conspirator, to blow up the king, his ministers and the members of the both Houses of Parliament, failed. This conspiracy, known as the "gunpowder plot," was discovered when barrels of powder had already been placed in the building prepared for ignition.

Parliament set aside Nov. 5 as a day for thanksgiving, known as Guy Fawkes Day, which continues to be celebrated in parts of England to the present day. The celebrations are often marked by the public burning of effigies representing Fawkes.

Fawkes was merely the tool of a band of men who, disappointed and angered by the persecution of Catholics by King James I, sought to overthrow the government and establish one of their own. The real originator of the plot was Robert Catesby.

Fawkes was tried, tortured and publicly executed in 1606. Nearly all of his fellow conspirators were killed on being arrested, or hanged.

THE SAND FLY INCRIMINATED
IN A CASE OF HAY FEVER

Altho some of us newspapers doctors have been talking a great deal about it, the practicing medical men are just beginning to recognize that allergy is a common cause of coryza, bronchial trouble, asthma and presumptive hay-fever.

Dr. Salvatore J. Parlatto, Buffalo nose and throat specialist, reported in the Journal of Allergy last November a case of Coryza and Asthma which he was able to prove due to sand flies, otherwise known as Caddis flies.

The lady has always lived along the Niagara river. The youngest child, hood she had suffered attacks of hives every summer. Her present coryza and asthma had begun when she was about sixteen, and curiously enough her hives had ceased when she was fifteen. With each succeeding summer since the coryza and asthma began the trouble had recurred, rather more severely and with longer periods of duration. The onset was, usually the end of June, and the trouble continued until the middle of September or when the first cold weather came. A peculiar feature the lady noticed was that she often felt relief while on a motor trip inland—in open country where the roadsides abound with grasses and weeds commonly responsible for hay fever. When this odd relief happened repeatedly, the lady began to suspect the cause of her trouble must be something around her home near the river. Intrigued—why not—she suspected sand flies, because they usually appeared about the season when her trouble returned, and disappeared along with the coryza and asthma.

Dr. Parlatto gave the patient skin and eye tests with various pollens found about Buffalo in the summer months. All these proved negative. He tested the patient for sensitivity to various foods, with similar negative results. He tested her with many common air-borne substances, including house dust and canary feathers (the patient kept a canary at home), and no slight reaction occurred to any of these. Then the patient's husband captured and brought to the doctor some of the sand flies, and from these the doctor made an extract. With the extract he made skin and eye tests on the patient, her husband and his own office nurse. The patient gave a distinctly positive reaction; the other two persons used as controls showed no reactions. Likewise several hay fever patients known to be sensitive to certain pollens gave no reaction to sandfly skin tests.

Finally the doctor clinched it by letting the patient smell of some of the dead sandflies in a jar, and within five minutes she began to have a nasal coryza. Then treatment was started to immunize the patient by hypodermic injections or gradually increasing doses of sand fly extract, and the patient soon began to improve. The following season was the first comfortable summer the patient had enjoyed in more years than most ladies like to acknowledge.

Dr. Parlatto believes that the fine hairs and scaly epithelium covering the wings of the sand flies, and readily shed when the insects fly about, float in the air as dust pollen and so enter the breathing tract of the sensitive individual.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

If Diphtheria Comes.

Do you believe in the toxin-anti-toxin shots that are to be given school children? My doctor claims that 9 out of 10 of the diphtheria cases he has had in the last six months had received the shots. I would like your opinion on the matter. (Mrs. T. J. F.)

Answer.—In cities where the school children have been immunized by toxin-antitoxin injections there are scarcely as many as 10 cases of diphtheria for all the doctors, in six months. By all means give the children this protection.

The Victim of Cancer.
My sister is now in hospital with cancer of the intestine. The doctors tell me there is no hope, and she can live only a few months. Do you think there is any chance at all that this cancer paste one of your correspondents wrote about could benefit her? (B. E. S.)

Answer.—No. Such treatment can be applied only where the cancer is external and accessible. In internal cancer that has progressed beyond reach of operation, the only alternative remedies are deep X-ray or radium treatment, which might alleviate in some cases. Otherwise it is kindest to let your family doctor keep the patient as comfortable as possible until the end. I have to say this, but still I think if I were the victim I could be grateful at least that I might have such comfort as the doctor can give.

Any Real Competent Doctor.
Please let me have the name and address of a doctor who can administer insulin to help a very skinny person accumulate some flesh, as described in one of your highly instructive articles recently. (W. A. M.)

Answer.—Any physician who is worthy of public confidence can and will give insulin in such a case, or instruct the patient in the use of it, if it is advisable. If the doctor meets the inquiry with a denial that insulin can be so used or with a blunt confession that he has "never heard of it," that's your cue to look around for a better medical adviser.

Beware the X-ray Portrait.
I have been troubled for about 15 years with a low transverse colon. The X-ray shows it resting on pelvic brim... (L. M. D.)

Answer.—Most of us, if we were foolish enough to sit for our X-ray portraits, would develop just that trouble. It is depressing to discover that one's innards sag so, isn't it? (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

WHILE riding in the pony cart we Scouty said, "Say, it's an art to drive this thing the way I do. I never need a whip to make a little pony go, because the pony seems to know that I will treat him nicely when he's giving us a trip."

"Oh, we'll admit you're pretty good, but please don't brag. I knew you would," replied another Tiny. "Just be sure you drive all right. The pony may decide to run like everything. That won't be fun. We'd hit some bumpy pavements and be tossed right out of sight."

Just then the Travel Man yelled, "Hey! You Tinymites drive back this way. I think I have a happy hunch that ought to please you all. Just pull the reins toward the right, but, goodness, not with all your might." Poor Scouty'd pulled so hard it almost made the pony fall. But they returned and then their friend, the Travel Man, said, "This will end the pony riding for today. We're leaving very soon. We'll drop Valencia behind and I feel sure you will not mind. Our next stop is Madrid and we will reach that place by noon."

So, soon they all were in a plane. It suddenly began to rain, but no one seemed to care a bit. They all were keeping dry. The plane was of the cabin sort and riding in it was real sport. When they were just above Madrid, they swooped down from the sky.

The plane slid safely to the ground and all the Tinymites looked around. The Travel Man said, "Come! Let's walk right into town, where we can see some sights. You bet we can!" They shortly met an old flower man. The Tinymites bought carnations. They were pretty as could be.

(The Tinymites see a bull fight in the next story.)

A sure way to be left in the cold, says Margin Max, is to take a hot tip on the market.

An English nobleman has entered the ring. After another title, no doubt.

Seen And Heard
In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York.—It wouldn't be New York without:

Patsy Cain's warehouse full of scenery of dead plays.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Madison Square garden.

The vines in the windows of Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard's seldom occupied Fifth Avenue house.

Old women selling pretzels out of baskets or baby carriages.

Underlings from the office of movie producers applauding at the opening of the company's latest picture.

Captains of finance walking around Central park reservoir for their morning's constitutional.

Swell apartments and dingy tenements side-by-side.

CHINESE INVASION
Chinese restaurants have taken Broadway and the Bronx, and now chow mein is a once-a-week dish in drug stores all over town.

Drug store chow mein is supplied by the wholesale house of Chin and Lee, a couple of young men, not yet 30, who were graduated out of New York university.

"They have a whole block of houses down in Greenwich Village. In one noodies are fried all day long. In another the ingredients—bamboo shoots, bean sprouts and whatever else is in chow mein—are diced for the kettles. In a third the mixture is cooked. Fifty automobiles are used to carry it around to the pharmacy trade. Chin and Lee took in $1,000,000 last year.

Big business men, these Chinese. Now and then a Chinese enrolls in the course of Chi-Chen Wang at Columbia university to learn more about his own language.

Mr. Wang is Columbia's instructor in Chinese and he has 18 in his class this semester, most of them Americans who intend to teach Oriental history and allied subjects. Although the language has been taught at Columbia since 1901, enrollment has increased during the last three years. But fewer students are missionaries, who once were in the majority.

Chinese, being an ideographic language, rather than a phonetic tongue, is one of the most difficult for Americans. Wang's pupils learn a vocabulary of about 1,000 characters the first year (if they apply themselves like good pupils). Some of them manage to learn only about 600, but that's enough to get them around China.

There are thousands of characters in the Chinese language, but the average college-educated native knows only about 7,000, or maybe 10,000 a Columbia authority said.

Few of those who study under Wang intend to have commercial relations with China, but a year or so ago one man was enrolled preparatory to going over as a fur trader. Chinese take the course to learn Wen Li, the classical Mandarin language, which is purer than most of the native vernacular.

Columbia has one of the largest Chinese libraries in America. About 30,000 volumes in the language.

EXCLUSIVE
Two of the most exclusive party spots in town are the Mayfair club, in the Ritz, and the Embassy club.

Only stage folk may belong to the former, which has a dance every Saturday night. Society members of the Embassy, which has dancing every night. It's as difficult to crash into one as the other.

The Mayfair is run by a committee, including Richard Barthelmess and Alice Joyce. Both clubs, however, were the idea of a single man, one John Rumsey.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington.—Another old structure on capitol hill, rich in memories, has fallen in the hands of a wrecking crew—

The Maltby building, just northwest of the capitol, for 17 years used by United States senators for their offices, is being razed in the new plaza park development which will surround the federal legislative and judicial establishments.

In 1889, when Harrison was inaugurated, the Maltby House was one of the leading hotels. It was the center of activity of the various state delegations for the inauguration ceremonies.

Three years later, however, the senate took it over to provide private offices for members. Freshman senators were assigned there, for the quarters were considered less desirable than those in the capitol.

Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts once had his offices in the Maltby. Others were Joseph Bailey of Texas, Robert La Follette, sr., of Wisconsin, William A. Clark of Montana, Edward D. White of Louisiana, later chief justice of the United States; James K. Jones of Arkansas, John P. Jones of Nevada, Matthew Quay of Pennsylvania, David E. Hill of New York, and others. Only four now in the senate had offices in the Maltby. And they are the oldest senators in point of service.

Senator Simmons, democrat of North Carolina, who entered the senate in 1901; Senators Overman, a democrat from the same state, and Smoot of Utah, a republican, who took their seats in 1903, and Senator Borah, republican of Idaho, who entered the senate in 1907.

These senators were forced to put up with many inconveniences unknown now. For example, there were only a half dozen telephones in the Maltby. There was a booth on the main corridor of each floor, and if a senator was called or wished to use the phone, he had to leave his office to do so.

In the senate office building now there are some 600 telephones.

NO WAITS NOW

But perhaps the greatest inconvenience was that they had to brave all sorts of weather to answer "roll calls." Through rain and snow, heat and cold they were forced to make their way to and from the capitol up the hill.

Now, in bad weather, they are rapidly whisked through a subway, which connects the capitol and their offices, in a railway car.

As an illustration of the difference between now and those days, I am reminded of an experience of Senator Perkins of California.

On the occasion of Washington's birthday, the senator was chosen to read Washington's Farewell Address. Unknown to him, the senate had convened an hour earlier that day.

A page was dispatched to the Maltby to find Senator Perkins. He located him in his office, feet propped on a desk, familiarizing himself with what he was to read. When told that the senate awaited him, he ran all the way to the capitol.

But the ascent of the hill was too much. Senators had to wait another 30 minutes until Perkins could catch his breath.

Before he became a football coach Knute Rockne says he was a mail sorter. And there's many a scrub hoping he'll come across with a letter when the season is over.

PEOPLE'S MANDATE FACES LONG DELAY PRIOR TO ACTION

Thirteen-month Lapse of Time Subject of Much Debate in Congress

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1930, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington.—(CPA)—The nation will have another evidence Wednesday of the great gulf that exists between public opinion and representative government. The mood of the electorate cannot be translated into action until a year from next December unless of course a special session of congress is called—something which is unlikely except for an emergency.

This thirteen month lapse has been the subject of much debate in congress and has been considered in the form of a constitutional amendment which has twice obtained the necessary two-thirds vote in the senate but has been killed in the house of representatives. It adopted by three-fourths of the states as well as congress it would have provided for the taking of office in January of all members of the house of representatives elected this week as well as one-third of the senators who were up for election Tuesday.
In order to synchronize the presidential inauguration with the session of congress the same amendment proposed that presidents be inaugurated in January instead of March.

OLD TRAVEL METHODS
The original purpose of the constitution was to allow enough time between an election and the inauguration of a new congress so that there would be sufficient continuity and also an opportunity for the members to travel back and forth, which 130 years ago meant journeys of several weeks for each member.

With modern transportation facilities the original reasons for delay have passed and as for continuity the house as well as the senate really retains at each election a large percentage of its membership.

Under the proposed amendment
the so-called short session of congress which begins next month and automatically expires on March 4 would be abolished. Congress instead would meet in January and could stay in session for two years.

The plan was suggested as a means of stopping filibusters in the short session but it also was urged on the ground that men who had been repudiated at a November election would not remain in power throughout an old session of congress as is now the case. Thus the congress elected in November 1928 meets in regular session next month and can adopt legislation until March 4.

Many men who have been defeated in Tuesday's election frequently termed "lame ducks," will be able to vote in congress on important measures.

BRINGS LONG DELAYS
Thus if the election in some districts indicated a distinct wet sentiment but the district is at present represented by a dry, the desire of the constituency cannot be fulfilled on that particular question until a year from December.

Undoubtedly the country in Tuesday's election will have expressed its-self on many issues, prohibition, tariff and party responsibility. The natural tendency is to express a protest on economic conditions. These conditions however may be entirely different in December, 1931.

Senator George Norris of Nebraska is the sponsor of the proposed constitution amendment and he intends to press it for action whenever an opportunity presents itself. Inasmuch as the amendment has not been submitted to the states in any form, there is no way of telling of course what the legislatures will think about it. But the trend at the moment is toward the ultimate adoption of a resolution of that kind.

FUR FLOWERS BLOOM

ah, oui; fur flowers blooming at

of course, match that of the coat.

Don't be superstitious, for opals are creeping more and more into the circle of seasonable semi-precious pendants, they can be matched as their iridescent quality goes beauti-

CREAMERIES PRODUCE MOST BADGER BUTTER

Madison.—Creameries produce approximately 95 per cent of the butter in Wisconsin as compared with about five per cent by farmers, the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and U. S. Departments of Agriculture reported here today.

In 1929 Wisconsin made 46,296,000 pounds of farm butter and 14,059,876 pounds of creamery butter. Last year creamery butter production was estimated at 154,408,305 pounds
as compared with about 7,000,000
for farm butter.

The growth of creameries to the detriment of farm butter manufacture explains the small proportion of milk utilized in farm butter making, the crop reporting service said. Two-thirds of the milk produced in the state is sold as whole milk. Crop reporters said that from March to September, 1930 about 66.5 per cent of the milk went into whole milk channels; 25.5 per cent was separated and the cream sold;
four per cent was used in the farm household; 3.3 per cent was fed to

POSTAL JOBS WILL AID UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION IN CITY

Men With Families to Be Given Preference in Filling
Rush Period Work

When extra clerks and carriers are engaged to handle the rush of Christmas mail at the Appleton post office, men with families who are out of work will be given preference, according to William H. Zuehlke, acting postmaster here. Mr. Zuehlke said that this measure is being taken on advice from the federal postal department as a means of trying to alleviate the unemployment situation.

There will be 25 extra men needed at the post office here this year to assist with the distribution of holiday mail and a total of $1,100 has been provided to pay their wages. Already the department has received many applications for these jobs. The hiring of extra help, however, will not start until about a week before Christmas. The extra clerks and carriers will be given about a week's work.

Several other rules have been established by the postal department this year to govern the hiring of extra hands during the Christmas rush.
All of these rules are designed to relieve the unemployment situation.

Under the plan the department will give first preference to capable and competent married men. Being married and having a family will serve as a qualification and the post offices are being advised to closely investigate each man who is engaged so that the worthy applicants will receive the jobs first.

Church Body Hears Talk On Luther

LUTHER and Reformation was the subject of the program given at the meeting of the Senior Luther League of First English Lutheran church Tuesday evening at the church. The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

FOR a second after Sybil's hand reached through the grating of her cage and slapped Corinne's cheek there was a stinging silence in the corner of the bank where the two girls stood. Then Corinne turned silently and walked away. But she noticed that the tellers in the several cages had seen the incident and two or three people on the floor had been watching. Tom Corinne recognized two of them.

Corinne walked straight up to the door which led to the vice-president's offices. She knew him, and knew that he was a friend of the Bockers family. The Bockers banked with him, too.

"May I use your telephone?" she asked him clearly. "I have a personal call and I'm rather late to have anyone hear me."

"Certainly." If the bank official was surprised he tried to conceal it. "Right here."

"Miss Lester decided to slap me," Corinne answered. "I don't know why. And I'm going to have her arrested."

"Miss Lester slapped you?" The man gasped. "Why?"

"Because I asked her to be kind to my father."

Corinne gave the police number. "But you can't do that." The man reached for the telephone and replaced it.

"My face happens to be my best feature and I'm not going to have her ruining it. She's either going to jail or apologize. And she's going to stop tormenting servants of the bank."

"But Miss Lester is a charming girl; very efficient; I don't see..."

"Then never do," Corinne answered wisely. "They think women have no depth when we're so deep they can't see through us."

Corinne reached for the telephone again but the man held on. He rang a bell on his desk and asked that Sybil should be brought in.

When Sybil came her eyes were smoldering but her lips were nervous.

"I'm sorry, but she insulted my father," Sybil addressed the executive.

"She insulted mine," Corinne answered. "I mentioned the fact that both of our fathers were working men in their youth, but that her father had his chance, and came out above. He was ready for it and deserved it, of course. Mr. Becker is a great admirer of Mr. Lester's. But my father never had an opportunity, so I asked her to be patient, and I was slapped."

"But Miss Lester is a lady. Surely not..."

"Oh, yes?" Now Corinne's voice was taunting. "Then why did she try to make out that my sister Sue had stolen her beads one night? She was caught in the act by Harry and Jack. I just can't trust her, that's all."

Sybil's voice, perfectly composed, interrupted. "It's because she is afraid of what I know that she's trying to make trouble."

"What you know?" Corinne asked wonderingly.

"Don't you see?" Sybil had turned back to the official. "Mr. Merryman's daughter's incident with my beads is another proof of the things I've been telling you. Luke father, like daughter."

The man's eyes narrowed. "Oh, what a lie!" Corinne jumped up quickly. "But you can't pull anything around me. It's wise to you. And I hope that some day you're slapped so hard..." Her own hand shot out and struck across Sybil's face.

Our Children

UNCLES

Whenever Ben came to school in a flashing new suit, some extra jewelry, a pocketful of junk from the toy shop, we knew that Uncle had been visiting. Uncle always bought out the shop for Ben.

Benny did not need it. What he needed was a severe course in doing without. His mother knew that and she dreaded the coming of Uncle.

You see Benny is the only child of his generation. The whole family join in showering him with gifts. Mother tries to see that his diet is simple and nourishing as a child's diet should be but Grandmother comes along and says, "What? Is the child to have only bread and jam and milk and fruit and salad for his supper? Give him a good piece of steak. I always gave his father steak and look at him."

Promptly Benny lays down his spoon and announces that he will have steak. As a matter of fact he does not like it and never eats it unless he cannot help it. His meal is spoiled and so is mother's.

But Uncle is the worst. Benny has a roomful of toys that he does not use. Uncle says, "Come along now to the toyshop and we will see what they have for my boy." He comes back loaded down with toys. They mean only distraction, disorder, and waste.

"I buy Benny good clothes but simple ones such as a child can wear with comfort and forget about them," Uncle says to him, "Is that the kind of suit your mother buys for you? You just come along with me and I'll show her what kind of suit a little boy likes. He does. Benny comes home prancing in full cowboy regalia, or a sailor suit with cap and whistle and pistol, or an Indian outfit, feathers and all. I'm about at my wits end. I hate to make trouble in the family but the only way I see out is to move to some hut in the wilderness where they cannot reach us and bring Benny up in a state of nature."

That is not fair. Uncles are privileged persons. They have all the fun of being a parent with none of the responsibility. They can amuse themselves with children and when they are tired go their way. What about the children they leave behind? What about the habits they have uprooted, habits that it has taken the father and mother years to establish? Years of pain and grief, struggle and triumph, all the difficult way. What of all that thrown to the winds?

If you are an uncle or an aunt, think a little. You too have a responsibility. It is your duty to strengthen the hands of the parents and you can do it because you have a halo and they, because of their day by day closeness to the children, have none. Use your power to help the child. Encourage him in good ways, praise him for well doing, reward him for duty done by furnishing him the means for good fun. But don't, if you value the love of that child in the years to come ruin him with gifts and privileges and over-indulgences. Be a partner in his training, not an enemy to it. G. O. P. LOSES, WETS GAIN IN OHIO ELECTION

State Goes Democratic and Shows Tendency Against Prohibition Law

Columbus, Ohio — (AP)—Ohio has gone Democratic on United States senator and governor and has increased the Democratic representation in the lower house of congress. It has gone wet to a certain extent, the first time in many years. Robert J. Bulkley, Cleveland Democrat, an advocate of repeal of the 18th amendment, who defeated Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch for the unexpired two years of the late Senator Frank B. Willis, will be the first anti-prohibitionist Ohio has sent to the senate since former Senator Allee Pomeroy retired in 1922. The state's wet tendency also is further emphasized by the apparent defeat of several dry Republican congressmen. Congressman John C. Speaks, Twelfth, Columbus, district, has yielded his seat to Arthur P. Linnick, prohibition repeal advocate, by an overwhelming majority. Several other Republican dry congressmen were in great danger of losing their seats to wets, early this morning. Speakers Nicholas Longworth of the house of representatives appeared to have retained his seat on the basis of almost complete returns from yesterday's election when he held a lead of 3,045 over his Democratic opponent with only 18 scattered precincts in the county unreported. Patterson is wet. Governor Cooper also went down in Democratic landslide, yielding to George White, Marietta, Democrat, by an apparent decisive majority. White was leading Cooper by more than 55,000 votes in 5,611 precincts out of 9,855 and his majority continued to increase as additional blocks of precincts were tabulated. Bulkley had piled up a majority of almost 100,000 in approximately three-fourths of the state and his lead continued to increase early this morning. Possibility of both houses of the state legislature also having Democratic majorities was indicated as county after county reported election of Democrats. Both branches have been overwhelmingly Republican for several years. Election of Bulkley to the senate makes the fifth senator that has served in the term of the late Senator Frank B. Willis which expires March 4, 1933. Succeeding Senator Willis was Cyrus Locher, Democrat, by appointment. Locher was succeeded by the late Theodore E. Burton by election. Burton was followed by Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch by appointment, and now McCulloch yields to Bulkley. Locher and Bulkley were Democrats.

The Little Church Around The Corner In New York Has Thousands Of Friends

Nestled between towering buildings, The Little Church Around the Corner in New York is a haven of friendliness in the midst of a great city.

This church, probably the most famous in America, is located in 22nd street, just off Fifth avenue, and its real name is "The Church of the Transfiguration." But that name has long since ceased to be used, except officially. One simple act of friendliness a half century ago gave the church its popular name. This incident occurred in 1871 when Joseph Jefferson went to the rectory of a church on Madison avenue and asked him to read the burial service at the funeral of George Holland, a well known actor.

The clergyman apparently regarded actors as outcasts and refused to officiate, saying: "There is a little church around the corner where they do such things." Whereupon, Joe Jefferson exclaimed: "Then God bless the little church around the corner!"

Leading newspapers printed the episode and it immediately fired the imagination of the country. There were editorials on tolerance and songs dedicated to the little church. From that day The Little Church Around the Corner has been beloved, not only by everyone connected with the theater but by millions of others as well.

The church was founded in 1848 by Dr. George H. Houghton who served as rector for 49 years, being succeeded by his nephew, Dr. George Clark Houghton. The first marriage at the church was performed in 1850. Now some 2000 weddings take place there each year.

The church is Episcopalian and, while not at all concerned with the creed of the applicants, it insists that they shall have had Christian baptism. No secret or runaway marriages are performed. Records show that 85 per cent of the couples married there remain married. Fees received from happy bridegrooms do not go to the clergyman, as is often the case, but to the church.

KABUL GOES BACK TO ANCIENT WAYS UNDER NADIR SHAH
Native Mass Meeting Attended by More Than 300 Tribal Delegates

Peshawar, Northwest Frontier, India.—(AP)—Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, is gradually slipping back to many of the picturesque native customs which ex-King Amanullah tried to abolish after his tour of Europe in 1928.

Travelers from Kabul say that the last "jirgah," a native mass meeting summoned by Nadir Shah, was attended by more than 300 tribal representatives from various parts of Afghanistan. Various subjects of vital interest to the country districts were discussed. All the delegates wore tribal dress, a strong contrast to the practice under Amanullah when all were urged to don European dress and some of the tribesmen, never having seen a frock coat before they arrived at the capital, had to be instructed in how to wear one. It was stated at the "jirgah" that the roundup of rebels in Kohistan and Kohdaman was proceeding apace, and that the prisoners included the father of Bacha Sakao, "the water boy of the north," who deposed Amanullah, but was subsequently beaten and hanged by Nadir Shah. Most of the captives from last summer's uprising have been blown from cannon.

GEORGE ALMOST WINS CORONER'S POSITION AS DRY

One of the surprises of the election was the sudden shifting of support to George Hogriever as the Prohibition candidate for coroner.

However, the movement failed to gather enough momentum to help George get the job and at 12:30, when the vote stood something like 12,000 to 20, George conceded the election to Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, the present coroner and a candidate for reelection on the Republican ticket.

George's campaign managers, however, failed to concede the election until Dr. Ellsworth's lead had reached a majority of 15,000. They said until it reached that point George still had a chance.

Headquarters for George's campaign were alive with activity until the final vote was in. George received countless telegrams and telephone calls complimenting him on his showing.

HALF OF NATION'S POPULATION GETS RETURNS ON RADIO

National Hookups Brought First Hand Results to Every Nook, Crook

BY ROBERT MACK

Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Washington—(CFA)—Half the nation's population sat in rapt attention around their radios last night to learn the results of the balloting that elected the new congress and filled high offices in two-thirds of the states.

In every nook and cranny of the nation the radio was relied upon for the election returns. All of the states except Maine elected their representatives to the house, one-third of the senate's membership was chosen and 32 states elected governors and other executives.

Practically every station on the air broadcast the returns. Flanking the nationwide network which confined themselves largely to returns of national in character, were all of the independent stations. Some 400 stations informed the radio audience of the trends in the balloting, followed by the results. Both the National hook-ups approximately 60 stations each.

Radio officials estimated that the audience totaled at least 50,000,000.

This conclusion was arrived at on the basis of the commerce department report that about 13,500,000 receiving sets are in use in the United States. The industry calculates that there are an average of five listeners for each set. Thus on an extraordinary occasion like this, an audience of perhaps 70,000,000 might be expected, while 50,000,000 would be a "conservative estimate."

In addition to the nationwide broadcasting, the high spots of the election returns were rebroadcast over most of the score of rebroadcasting stations in operation to other parts of the world.

Believing that maximum service should be afforded, the federal radio commission stretched a point by allowing numerous stations, ordinarily limited to daylight operation, to broadcast during evening hours for the transmission of election returns. This was done where no "ruinous interference" to the reception of other stations was caused.

OUTAGAMIE - GO VOTERS APPROVE VETO AMENDMENT

Give Governor Right to Kill Parts of Appropriation Bills

Outagamie-go voters joined with the state in giving Wisconsin governor the right of partial veto on appropriation bills. The referendum approved by practically every precinct in the county and carried 6,697 to 3,643.

In the past bills often have carried appropriations for more than one purpose and vetoing of the bill killed necessary and often urgent appropriations. It was pointed out, however, the governor will be able to approve part of the appropriation and reject that which he is not in favor of. Proponents of the bill maintain it will stop political play with unnecessary appropriations which are parts of urgent appropriation bills.

Early returns favored the bill and as returns continued the approval was general. However, there was an indication that many people were not acquainted with features of the referendum or did not care to vote for it, the total vote being considerably less than for various officers.

High School Eleven Meets Oshkosh Here Saturday

ORANGE HAS SHOWN IMPROVEMENT IN LAST TWO GAMES

Defensive Strength Was Proved Last Week; Seek Punch in Offense

VALLEY STANDINGS

W. Green Bay	4	1	0	.800
Manitowoc	4	1	1	.800
E. Green Bay	3	1	0	.750
Marquette	3	2	1	.600
Oshkosh	3	2	1	.500
Sheboygan	1	3	1	.250
Appleton	1	4	0	.200
Fond du Lac	1	5	0	.167

With only two games left on most of the schedules, and particularly on the Appleton high school schedule, valley conference football teams swing into the final stages of the 1930 race Saturday. The season will close Nov. 15, for most of the teams, the annual East-West game at Green Bay being one of the exceptions.

Coach Joseph Shields' Appleton gridders will entertain on George A. Whiting athletic field Saturday, Oshkosh high school being the guests. Then a week from Saturday the Orange rings down the curtain with a game with East Green Bay at the Bay.

The aggregation which comes to Appleton this weekend has won two and lost two games in the valley wheel. However, it is as strong as East Green Bay and therefore a bit weaker than Manitowoc to whom it lost a recent fracas, 13 and 7.

An Appleton victory Saturday is entirely possible if one is to judge by the improvement the Orange has shown in the last couple weeks. The trick in holding Manitowoc to a 13 to 0 score last week showed the Orange has improved defensively. The score does not show that the team was within scoring distance on a couple occasions, lacking only the punch to drive the ball across. If Coach Shields has solved the problem during the week, the chances for an Orange win are very good. And incidentally a win over Oshkosh would give the squad a chance to meet East Green Bay the week following on even terms.

Besides the Appleton-Oshkosh game Saturday, only one other game is scheduled on the valley card. It will show East Green Bay at Sheboygan with the Bays a top heavy favorite to beat the light Chair eleven.

Battle Ripon College Redmen for Big Four Football Championship

Waukesha—Carroll College and all Waukesha are in the midst of preparations for what promises to be the greatest Pioneer homecoming in years. The Pioneers will be hosts to Coach Carl Deehling's Ripon Redmen. On the outcome of the Saturday encounter depends a Carroll Big Four Football championship. The Armstrong men have vanquished all the conference teams with the exception of Ripon which team stands firmly in the path to Coach Norris Armstrong's sixth state college championship since he assumed the duties of grid mentor at Carroll back in 1923.

The Ripon defeat of the Lawrence Vikings on Saturday portends no easy game for Captain Cliff Goerke who will play his first game in three weeks when he returns to the Carroll lineup against the Redmen. Coach Armstrong is ready to put every man of his first string regulars into the field and seems confident of the final outcome of the game. All the regulars who were compelled to take the bench because of the possibility of aggravating old injuries last Saturday will be ready and anxious to start the Homecoming feature.

A huge structure of boxes is being erected in anticipation of the traditional bonfire on the night before the game. The campus, fraternity houses and business places of Waukesha are all making elaborate plans for a gala occasion. Carroll grads are expected to be present in large numbers for entire program which starts Friday morning with a huge pep meeting in charge of Alumni and ends with the annual Homecoming dance in the Carroll gym on Saturday night has been planned to honor and entertain alumni. Complete arrangements for the festivities are in the hands of the Carroll student senate, the representative student government organization of the college.

IRON CLUBS WITH THICK TOP ON BLADE HAVE MANY ADVANTAGES

THE leading makers of golf clubs throughout the world have shown during the past year a decided preference for iron heads which are noticeably thicker along the top of the blade than those we have been accustomed to see through previous years. The thin almost razor like tops are beginning to disappear and all new designs are evidencing more solid qualities and have a more business like if less graceful appearance.

I say that this preference has been shown during the past year. Possibly it would be more correct to say that it has been advertised extensively during the past year, for iron of this kind have long been obtainable, especially from imported, hand forged stocks, where production is not so uniform as in our domestic die stamping factories. I do not believe that the idea is new, but especially in connection with the new ball, it is something which has appealed to the average golfer. I cannot count the times I have been asked if I liked the thick irons and if so why.

INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

The first iron of this kind of which I laid hold of was a number four which I encountered in Jimmy Donaldson's shop in Sarasota, Florida in 1926. I immediately added it to my kit. I have no hesitancy in saying that it is today my favorite iron, a club I delight to play and in which I have unlimited confidence. Since the day when I acquired it I have always used it wherever possible, spraying it sometimes to take the place of a masher and forcing it again to do the work of a three. Later in the same year, I obtained a three which could have been made by the same forger, it was so nearly like the four, but it had a faulty balance and I had not used it greatly until I had the shaft changed this spring. These are now the only really thick-topped clubs I carry, but the others while more finely drawn along the top lines are still of solid appearance and inspire confidence that they are not too fragile for the heaviest work.

I think that there are three definite advantages of the thick top. First, it inspires confidence. Second, the more solidly built club has more satisfying feel and ring when it comes in contact with the ball, there is both a solid feel and sound with no semblance of the tinny response of the thinner blade; and third, an advantage which may be wholly imaginary yet it has its effect on the shot. The last requires some explanation to be appreciated.

CLUB OFTEN USEFUL

The fifth hole at Sandwich in ordinary weather can be reached with a drive and number three iron. The design of the hole requires a straight drive down the middle of a moderately wide fairway and an iron, slightly dog-leg to the left, over an expansive bunker and some formidable dunes. If the drive follows the left side of the fairway too closely, the second shot is made more difficult by a ridge of small dunes close in front of the ball. In the Walker Cup singles, my drive on this hole was pulled slightly and was long enough to leave my ball immediately beneath this ridge in a heavy clover leaf.

In order to clear the ridge the shot had to rise about as quickly as an ordinary mashie shot, yet with the breath of a breeze against it, the shot was of ordinary three-iron length. The only possibility was a forcing shot with a number four, going deep in the grass under the ball in order to clear the ridge. The shot came off quite well, leaving my ball some four yards past the hole. Possibly the shot could have been played successfully with a thin iron, but as I had to strike the ball quite near the top of the blade, I am certain I should have felt less confidence in the thinner metal.

FOR HEAVY GRASS

This same feature of the thick blade makes it far more satisfactory for shots played out of heavy grass where the player must dig for the ball. The ordinary club is quite sufficient for shots from the fair way where the normal contact point is less than halfway up the face of the club. The metal is thick enough at that point. But for unusual work of the kind I have described, the thicker blade seems to be preferable. I do not recall seriously the only that the thick top irons are more useful in playing the new ball, that is, any more than in playing the present ball. It is the thought of

PAPE, HAYCRAFT, FRANTA BECOME GREEN BAY PROS

Coach Lambeau Announces Release of Jack Harris Former Badger Star

GREEN BAY—Orin Pape, all western halfback from Iowa, Kenneth Haycraft, all-American end from Minnesota and "Chief" Franta, St. Thomas guard joined the Packers Tuesday.

Determined to be prepared for any emergency on the last lap of the 1930 National league pennant chase, Coach Lambeau completed a deal Monday night with Manager Dunn of the Minneapolis Redjackets for the men. It was an outright purchase and the Green Bay Football corporation laid a good sized check on the line for the gridders.

Pape was one of the best backs ever developed at Iowa and his debut in the professional game has been a success. He ran 65 yards for a touchdown against the Chicago Cardinals and in the game against Ports mouth he dashed 60 yards for another score. Pape is a fancy stepper in the open field and, with the Green Bay line in front, he should be able to get into the vacant spaces often. Pape weighs 180 pounds.

Kenneth Haycraft played three years of varsity football at Minneapolis. In 1927 he was an all-conference end and in 1928 he was named as an all conference, all-western and all American wingman. This is his second year in professional football and his performances at the line extremely have been outstanding for the Redjackets.

Haycraft weighs 175 pounds and speed is his middle name. He is an expert receiver of forward passes and it is in the overhead attack that his basketball experience comes in handy. Haycraft graduated from the Minneapolis law school and, when not playing football, is associated with a prominent legal firm in Minneapolis.

"Chief" Franta hails from St. Thomas college. This was his second year with Minneapolis and aside from Barranger and Ward, he was the outstanding forward on the Dunn team combination. In the game here against the Packers Franta probably got as many tackles as all the other Gopher forwards combined. Minneapolis has been using Franta at a tackle but his regular position is guard. Franta weighs 211 pounds and is built along the lines of Mike Michaleske.

Haycraft, Franta and Pape reported for practice with the Packers Tuesday morning and began learning the Green Bay signals and style of play. They may play against the Bears next Sunday.

Coach Lambeau announced the release of Jack Harris, former Wisconsin captain, who reported to the Packers squad last week. Jostling, Wilson, Barranger and Ward of the Minneapolis team have been sold to the Philadelphia Yellowjackets, it was reported today. The Redjackets have disbanded for the season and probably for all time as Manager John Dunn lost quite a bit of money trying to promote "pro" football in the northern city.

EASTERN ELEVENS COMPLAIN ABOUT INJURED VETERANS

Five Regulars May Be Missing from Army When It Meets Illinois

NEW YORK—(AP)—Another indication that football in the east is nearing its season's climax is the wave of injuries this week. On every hand stories are coming in of hurts to star players and other mishaps that dim the prospects to teams for next Saturday's battles.

Among the worst sufferers are Columbia, which tackles Colgate, Army, which engages Illinois, Pennsylvania, which goes up against Notre Dame, and Princeton, which has a fairly easy opponent in Lehigh.

Up at West Point, Army reports the loss of Bowman, regular quarterback, Miller, Venter and Carlmark, end, in addition to that of Letzler, who has been sick for a week.

If Bowman misses the Illinois game, the Cadets may be in a bad situation, as Carver is the only capable replacement.

Three Pennsylvania backs, Gette, Graupner and Gentle, and one tackle, Olsen, were not able to join the rest of the team as it began preparations for the Notre Dame game, due to the bruises of the clash with Kansas. Bob Zundel, Princeton fullback who twisted a knee playing against Brown, hurt it again in yesterday's practice and is not expected to play again this season. Pitts burgh is not counting heavily on Paul Reider, 150 pound back who won a regular position only to get some bad bruises while playing Nebraska. The Panthers tackle Carnegie Saturday.

At Harvard, where Coach Arnold Horween again shifted his backfield in an effort to find the best combination to send against Michigan, two linemen, Kuehn and Richards, were reported out of Saturday's game while Harding and Cuckard, backs, are on the doubtful list.

Other teams came through last Saturday's games in good condition and were able to get their preparations started with little delay. Coach Jackson Cennell of Dartmouth sprang the day's surprise by rescinding an order for a two day rest and putting the green through a long scrimmage when his scouts reported

Cincinnati Reds Move To Orlanda For Training

BY JOHN R. FOSTER Copyright, 1930

NEW YORK—(AP)—Cincinnati will not remain at Orlando, Fla., to train in 1931. The club is leaving a good ball park to experiment with Tampa. The latter place is thought to be more easy of access to other ball clubs that enter the state.

Washington trained for a long time at Tampa. The only used the team and Washington liked Tampa. The attendance dwindled at exhibition games. Then the ground was fixed up to make it more attractive but Griffith of Washington disagreed with the owners of the property and left Tampa to go to Bloxi.

Detroit moved in when Washington moved out and trained there in 1930. The visit did not add much to the Detroit exchequer and the team was no more successful than Washington had been. So Detroit decided to go to Sacramento next spring. That is an experiment, being somewhat farther north than major league teams locate to train in California. Sacramento says it will put on good weather and give Detroit a good ball ground.

The St. Louis Nationals once trained at Stockton, which is a short distance to the south and got on fairly well.

With Cincinnati at Tampa the Boston Nationals at St. Petersburg, Brooklyn at Clearwater, St. Louis at Bradenton and Philadelphia at Winter Haven, five of the National league teams will be grouped closely in the Florida orange belt.

The New York Americans are at St. Petersburg and all of these clubs can interchange games without much travel. The Athletics will go back to Fort Myers, an exhibition series already having been arranged in part for them by the Fort Myers board of energy.

The St. Louis Americans will train at West Palm Beach. Orlando will be open to any ball club that is seeking a park of worth and a city of beauty on the main line between Jacksonville and Tampa.

The National league teams are fixed for spring training in 1931 but not all of the American league teams have determined upon their quarters. An effort has been made to get Cleveland to leave New Orleans but the present indications are favorable to that city.

Superstitious fans say Cleveland would have better luck if the team would change its training camp.

There has been some talk of a shorter training season but experienced managers shake their heads at undertaking anything of the kind, calling attention to the fact that it is out of the question under the present arrangement to bring around good pitchers before the middle of May and by that time some club may get a lead that it is not easy to overcome.

Young players must be tried out and they need at least three weeks of active work, after two weeks of conditioning to prove whether they have anything in them for the season to come. Some of the major league teams must develop young players for the campaign of 1931 or they will be no better off than they were the past season.

THISTY SEEKING QUARTERBACK FOR BADGER GRID SQUAD

Poor Choice of Plays When Within Scoring Distance Has Hurt Team

MADISON—(AP)—A football Moses to lead Wisconsin's eleven out of the wilderness of defeat was the hope of Coach Glenn Thurston when he signed his squad for the South Dakota State game Saturday and the forthcoming Northwestern tilt.

Previous lack of success has been laid to poor generalship of the bulky Badgers. Poor selection of plays in touchdown sequences is believed to have kept them on the wrong side of the fence.

So Thistlethwaite unbundled a backfield shift in the workout here yesterday. He moved Jim Wimmer up to the first guard at quarterback and relieved Sam Behr, halfback, of the signal calling duties. Tury Oman, tuckermant giant from the north, also was with the first outfit at fullback and looked improved as he accurately hurled passes in an effort to strengthen Wisconsin's ragged aerial attack.

"Pip" Nelson, the low-geared little firebrand, also is slated for a chance to direct the eleven.

The ever efficient line, which has not been scored through this season, remained intact.

Wally Mack was disqualified in his fight with Al Koepsel, both of Milwaukee. Bruce Fero stopped Jack Ziegler in two, and Louis Brunner, Manitowoc, shaded Alex Ehler, Sheboygan, in three.

WOLVES SUPPORTS DEMAND VICTORY OVER HARVARD

8,500 Fans and 100 Piece Band Plan on Making Trip to Cambridge

BY WILLIAM WEEKES Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(AP)—Even a Western conference football championship, or a tie for the title, toward which Michigan apparently is headed, would not offset a defeat by Harvard Saturday, and preparation for the struggle has reached life and death proportions.
How much Michigan wants a victory over the Crimson—and apparently expects to be indicated by the fact that 8,500 supporters and a 100-piece band, will accompany the Wolverines to Cambridge. Michigan's first triumph over Harvard in gridiron history was recorded last year when the Wolverine suddenly came to life after a sad early season, and gain a 14 to 12 victory.
That game was the turning point of the season and Michigan went on to hold Iowa to a tie and defeat an admittedly superior Minnesota eleven.

HAS FINE PASS ATTACK
Coach Harry Kipke has developed a fine forward passing attack around Harry Newman, sensational sophomore quarterback, but is working to organize a running attack. Every regular except Bill Hewitt, a good end, will be in condition for the battle at Cambridge.
Of the other Midwestern eleven who will conduct raids into the east Saturday, Notre Dame, Ohio State and Illinois, only the Illini are not being driven this week. Coach Bob Zuppke has so many cripples at Champaign that he doesn't dare take chances on any more, and is concentrating on a new offense and replacements for his line. Illinois surprised the Army last year, but does not appear capable of doing much against the cadets Saturday.
Knut Rockne hasn't let up on his first and second teams this week, and is still trying to drive out the danger of overconfidence before Pennsylvania is met at Philadelphia Saturday. Yesterday he revised the shock troop backfield, which did not operate as he wished against Indiana last week. Bernie Leany replaced Mike Koken at left half, Carl Cronin went to quarter in place of Chuck Jackkwich, and Clarence Kaplan played at right half for Paul O'Connor.

OHIO PREPS FOR NAVY
Ohio State's preparation for its game with the Navy Saturday has been slowed down by numerous injuries. None have been serious, but have kept Coach Sam Williamson from concentrating on the same lineup each day.
Purdue is so little worried about Chicago that Coach Kizer has not drilled his first string and reserves this week. They were down for work today, but Kizer said they would get just enough to keep on edge. The Maroons put in a session on defense against Boulmermaker running plays yesterday and probably will stick to defense drills all week.
Defensive preparation for Northwestern's land and air attack is the main item at Indiana this week. The Hoosiers, as usual, will distinctly be the underdogs, but are still hopeful of having their annual "good day" against the Wildcats. Northwestern will rely on Hank Bruder to throw passes while injured Pug Rentner, who left Leach will be the fourth member of the backfield with Hanley and Russell.

Iowa is hopeful of a victory if it can halt Marquette passes, and Wisconsin and Minnesota are confident of overcoming South Dakota State and South Dakota, respectively.

Sports Question Box

Question—How long has Frankie Genaro been fighting? Is he as good now as when he held the American flyweight title?
Answer—Genaro started off as an amateur and won the Olympic flyweight title in 1920. He turned pro after his return to this country. By no means. Frankie depends on his experience and ring generalship to win fights for him.
Question—Can a player go into the major leagues without playing in the minor leagues?
Answer—Yes.
Question—Is there such a person as a professional instructor in pitching?
Answer—Yes, in a baseball school in California. But California is a long way across the continent. Old and experienced pitchers are capital instructors if you can get them to help you.
Question—Has any boxing commission ordered Mickey Walker to defend his middleweight title of late?
Answer—Yes, New Jersey ordered Mickey Walker to accept a match with Vince Dundee. The latter posted a check challenging for a match.
Question—What is the record for the Pentathlon made in the Olympic games?
Answer—14 points by E. R. Lehtonen of Finland at Antwerp in 1920.
Question—How are pitchers rated as to their success?
Answer—The figures which help but most of the rating is done by personal opinion when pitchers seem to win about the same number of games.
Question—How much did Joe Boley cost the Philadelphia American league club?
Answer—Write direct to the president of the club.
Question—How would you rate Frankie Sims, the Cleveland heavy-weight?
Answer—A good second rater with a destructive punch.
Question—Would you advise skipping the rope rapidly or use a regular pace?
Answer—Better results will be obtained by timing about 120 turns to the minute.

TUNNEY TAKES STAND OVER MARA CONTRACT

New York—(AP)—Fight fans expected to learn today whether or not Gene Tunney administered a technical knockout in supreme court Monday to his one-time friend, Timothy J. Mara, who is suing for $500,000 of the former champion's $1,752,282 earnings.
The decision was to be rendered this afternoon in supreme court where Justice Hattings on Monday took under advisement a motion to throw the case out of court. The defense was to start today and Tunney was expected to take the stand.

MAJOR MOGULS MAY MEET IN NEW YORK

Chicago—(AP)—The joint meeting of the American and National leagues probably will be held in New York. Instead of Chicago this year. It has been customary to alternate between New York, the headquarters of the National league, and Chicago, where the American league holds forth. While no call for the joint affair has been issued this year, some of the owners have been unofficially informed that Commissioner K. M. Landis intends to request the sixteen meet in New York.

ROOF AIRPORTS FOR ENGLAND

London—England is planning an extensive system of "roof" airports to be constructed in London, Manchester, Liverpool, Bristol, Leeds, Newcastle and Cardiff. Each of these ports, it is estimated, will cost $6,500,000.

They will be constructed of steel and contain six stories in their height of 130 feet. Each roof port will have an area of 1800 feet on each side. Arades and shops will be located on the ground floor and shops, car parks and other offices on the second, third and fourth floor. The fifth floor will contain offices, reception rooms and hangars and workshops for planes which will land on the roof above.

"The air ministry is emphatic in getting these big buildings up in every city," says A. J. Roach-Cumming, one of the engineers on the job. "He believes it is the only possible solution for the aerodrome of Britain, the present aerodromes being too far from the cities which they serve."

The present membership of the Socialist party in Great Britain is now about 2,000,000, whereas in 1920 it was 4,359,000.

LAKE LEVEL GROUP MEETS THIS WEEK TO DRAW UP PLANS

Mayor B. W. Fargo to Issue Call for Second Gathering at Kaukauna

Kaukauna—Mayor B. W. Fargo, who was elected head of a group formed here to work for an increase in the level of Lake Winnebago, will call a meeting of the valley cities this week to complete plans for the permanent organization of the group. The final plans will be mailed to the various cities for their approval.

If the plans are approved they will be adopted for the organization, which probably will be given a name at the meeting. The first meeting was held in Kaukauna last week at the call of Mayor B. W. Fargo. Mayors from every city in the valley from Neenah to Green Bay, including the village chairman and presidents, were at the meeting. They were all in accord with the project.

Relief will be sought through the reestablishment of the old lake level in Winnebago which was 21 1/2 inches above the crest of the government dam at Menasha. Several years ago the level was lowered to 15 inches above the crest of the dam. Late reports were that an attempt was being made to have the Menasha dam removed altogether.

In opposition to the movement to have a higher lake level is the Association for Relief of High Water. It will fight every movement to have the level raised. It is believed that if a higher lake level is retained through the summer the river can be flushed at various periods, cleansing it from the stench that was noticed last summer and insuring the health of the people living in the communities along the river.

MICHIGAN TROUT ON BADGER MENU

Commercial Fishermen Start Spawn Taking Along Wisconsin Ports

Madison — (P) — Definite assurance that Lake Michigan trout will stay on Wisconsin's menu was given here today by the state conservation commission on the basis of 1930 spawn taking.

In several Wisconsin ports on Lake Michigan fishermen are busy slitting trout for the eggs they carry. About half the year's work is completed and there will be a normal number of eggs taken, the commission said.

Spawn taken began at the close of the trout season Oct. 15. Under special agreements, commercial fishermen are permitted to catch trout and whitefish in order that the state may get the fish eggs for hatching during the winter. Spawn taking is being carried out in Sturgeon Bay, Milwaukee, Sheboygan, Kenosha, Racine, and Port Washington.

"The actual work of spawn taking is carried on as soon as fish have been taken out of the lake into the boat," the commission explained. "The crew turns the fish over to the spawn taker who extracts the eggs and milt from the male and female fish. Fertilization takes place immediately and the eggs hatch."

"After they are taken ashore, the eggs are placed on wire trays and transported to hatcheries. At the hatcheries they are measured by the quart, each quart containing approximately 8,000 eggs, and put in fine mesh wire trays. The infertile eggs, detected by color, are removed. "The fertile eggs, are put in hatchery boxes on wire trays in piles of 10 to 12 trays per box. These are put in hatching tanks through which a stream of water flows from 90 to 120 days—the average incubation period of the trout."

After hatching the fish are held from 21 to 40 days before being distributed. Generally the fish are placed in the beds from which the spawn was taken.

POETIC TRAGEDY RIPPING, CLEAR

Maxwell Anderson Does Good Job With Story of Elizabeth and Essex

BY RICHARD LOCKRIDGE
Special dispatch to Post-Crescent
New York — (CPA) — Maxwell Anderson has taken the story of Elizabeth and Essex, swept it clean of the doubts and speculations—and no doubt of the facts—which careful historians have littered over it, and made of what is left a fine poetic tragedy, ripping and clear. The Theater Guild offered it Monday evening under the title "Elizabeth the Queen," and Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne were swept up with it as high as they have ever been before. It holds much of romantic beauty.

It is, too, a triumph of the English language over all those things which tend to translate it into a broken jargon. Mr. Anderson, who has never entirely failed to prove himself both a romantic and a poet, has not so fully shown these related attitudes as he shows them here. His prose has life and sonority; it is cadenced, rich, full-voiced.

—Perhaps of the story it is simplest to say that it is a retelling of what might have happened if things were as they should be. Mr. Anderson has not, because he is dealing with history, waived one clause of his poet's license.

Things in life happen grubbiy, haphazardly. The moment for song usually finds us with colds in our heads; when we should be swept by emotion we are conscious chiefly of slight headaches. Mr. Anderson has no care for the slight headache school of playwrighting; nor does he join with historians in their musty inquiries into the other physiological details. Essex and Elizabeth were lovers—"If there had been no empire between us, the god who seeks through heaven and earth and hell beneath for perfect lovers might end his search here."

I suppose it has little enough to do with history. It has much to do with life.

Here's Quick Way To Break Up a Cold

Makes You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

The thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry — with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too — that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a new-fangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

Of Interest To Farmers

FUTURE FARMERS STRESS FARMING

Organization Studies Recent Developments in Rural Life

Madison — When members of the Future Farmers of America, a national organization of boys studying vocational agriculture, met here recently they expressed particular interest in recent developments in rural life and farming. This movement was started two or three years ago in the southern part of the United States and has spread so rapidly that practically every state already has formed its state association.

In Wisconsin there now are 96 high school departments of vocational agriculture, and of this number 65 already have organized local chapters of the Future Farmers of America.

The purpose of the organization, as it takes form in Wisconsin, is to promote the study of vocational agriculture in the high schools; to promote thrift; to promote recreational and educational activity for students of vocational agriculture through agricultural contests, athletic events, vacation and project tours, father and sons banquets; to create more interest in intelligent agricultural pursuits in the various counties of the state; to create and nurture a love of country life; to establish the confidence of the farm boy in himself and in his work; to promote scholarship; and to encourage cooperative efforts among students of vocational agriculture.

The officers elected at the second annual meeting of the Wisconsin Association of Future Farmers of America October 11 were: President, Harold McMahon, Columbia-co; vice president, Wilbur Die, Wood-co; secretary, William Marquardt, Rock-co; treasurer, Hubert Mueller, Waukesha-co; reporter, Cyrus Catt, Pepin-co; state adviser, V. E. Kivlin.

7 RESIDENTS SEEK CITIZENSHIP HERE

Seven Outagamie-co residents will make application for citizenship at the semi-annual naturalization hearing Saturday morning before Judge Edgar V. Werner in Circuit court here.

The applications are now on file with Sydney M. Shannon, clerk of courts. This is one of the smallest classes in recent years. Mr. Shannon said. One of the persons seeking citizenship is from England, two are from Holland, and four are from Germany. They are: Anton Knuppel, Oscar Friedrich, Rudolph Becker, Marie Centner, Centner, George Wilhelmus Driessen and William Cookayne, Appleton; Peter Kamps, Little Chute.

with the drama—with mere dramatic story telling, for the sake of the story and its romance. It is a grand escape from too much realism—and from too, too many "yeahs."

Miss Fontanne, partially concealed by her really superlative makeup, has never been happier in a part. Every changing, flickering mood of a tempestuous woman is captured; the whole heartiness, absurdity, grandeur of the queen is in the playing. Mr. Lunt's part, a shade less difficult, nevertheless serves to bring out all those qualities which set him apart from the run of actors.

LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION WILL OPEN ON NOV. 11

Madison — With the largest display in its history, the fifteenth annual Junior livestock exposition will open its doors on November 11-13 at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture to 206 boys and girls assembling livestock from 23 Wisconsin-coos.

The exhibits consisting of 212 baby beef calves will be judged by John Robbins, Indiana; 36 lambs by William Miles, Rock-co; and 187 pigs by Burle Dobson, Grant-co. At the close of the show the entire exhibit will be sold at public auction conducted by E. A. Heberlein, Grant-co.

According to Arlie Mucks, secretary of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders association, which organization holds the show, the competition has been limited to Wisconsin boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 and all contestants must have fed and fitted, and must show their animals.

Counties which will send exhibits are St. Croix, Dunn, Pepin, Buffalo, Trempealeau, Marathon, Clark, Monroe, Juneau, Marquette, Richland, Columbia, Dodge, Grant, Iowa, La Fayette, Dane, Rock, Jefferson, Walworth, Kenosha, and Marinette.

PREFERRED STOCK WITH CONVERSION HAS HIGHER PRICE

Case in Point Is 7 Per Cent Issue of Chicago Northwestern

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press

New York — A preferred stock carrying a conversion or participating privilege always commands a higher market price than one of equal investment rating but without such conversion or participating feature even when there is no prospect of the privilege having any near term value. A case in point is the preferred stock of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company. This is a 7 per cent, $100 par cumulative issue, non-callable with a long record of continuous dividend payments. The unique provision is that which entitles the preferred stock to 7 per cent, then gives the common 7 per cent, then the preferred 3 per cent, then the common 3 per cent, and after 10 per cent on both classes they share alike in any further distribution.

Now with Chicago and Northwestern earnings running at a rate such below that of a year ago reflecting the traffic slump which all the carriers have suffered from there is nothing to indicate that the preferred stock will receive more than the regular 7 per cent for a long time to come. And yet there is no doubt that the stock sells higher in the market than it would if this feature were eliminated. Back in 1919 and during the fifteen years before that date holders of Northwestern preferred received $8 annually because earnings warranted it. There has been nothing of the kind since.

Selling around $130 a share the return on the $7 dividend is about 5.4 per cent which seems amply protected even under present circumstances. Taking the first nine months of the year as a basis it is estimated that the road will cover preferred dividend requirements more than three times over. Assuming that there is recovery in railroad car loadings and in railroad income next year this margin of safety will be increased. Meanwhile the market endeavors to strike a balance in the price of the preferred stock between present advantages in railroad operations and the potential value of the participating provision attaching to the stock.

AIR MAIL FLAG

Washington — An official air mail flag has been adopted by the U. S. Post Office department to be flown over all airports at which air mail planes stop. The flag was designed by Col. L. H. Britton of Northwest Airports, and consist of blue stripes on a red white and blue stripes on a white field. Huge gold wings and a globe carrying the words "U. S. Air Mail" are imposed over the stripes.

The modern product of a great music house

the new 1931 BRUNSWICK RADIO

SEATTLE LEADS WAY FOR GIANT CHAIN OF POWER PLANTS

Plans $75,000,000 Project in Skagit River for Completion in 15 Years

Seattle—Seattle, pioneer in public-owned power in the northwest, soon will head of a project rivaling great Boulder Dam in magnitude and mass-production of hydro-electric energy.

It is the Skagit river project, to cost ultimately $75,000,000 and to be finished in less than 15 years.

Financed from reserve bonds being retired from proceeds of Seattle's 28-year-old public power and light system this gigantic system will produce, when complete, a total of 1,120,000 horsepower. This is almost equal to Boulder Dam's ultimate capacity of 1,200,000; it is greater than Niagara's American output; nearly twice the power of Muscle Shoals project.

Skagit river, some 100 miles north of Seattle, will be harnessed by three great dams, Gorge, Diablo and Ruby. The first two are now complete. According to J. D. Ross, superintendent of Seattle's City Light and Power, this project will cost but $66.55 per horsepower, cheapest unit cost of any large hydro development in America.

Since 1905 Seattle has been making and selling its own electricity. On rates said to be cheaper than any city's in the country, Seattle has created a $50,000,000 system, serves 95,000 customers, makes an annual net profit of $1,500,000. Its wires are tied in with Tacoma's city-owned plant, first publicly owned "super-power system" in America.

When Skagit is completed Ross expects to see all the publicly-owned plants of the Pacific coast tied together in a big network for exchange of surplus and mutual aid.

"It will only be a matter of time until the power of the Colorado and that of the Columbia and Skagit flow into the same reservoir," said Ross.

"The farm granges of both Oregon and Washington are campaigning for measures on the November ballot that will permit smaller cities and towns to combine for purchase or development of power. Portland has a public-ownership movement, and has a filing on the Columbia.

San Francisco has its Hetch Hetchy system, Los Angeles its big power project. When Boulder Dam begins pouring its power into the southwest you will see a tie-up of all these projects. It will be the first great public-owned super-power of American history."

Plans also are under way for harnessing the Columbia river. These plans center on a Columbia Basin project, a great reclamation scheme to be put before Congress in 1931. This will reclaim 1,800,000 acres of land and develop more than 1,000,000 horsepower of electricity.

An exhaustive report on the entire upper Columbia will be placed before Congress in July 1931 by Major John S. Butler, U. S. army district engineer.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU "SCORPIO"

If November 6th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to noon, from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 3 a. m. to 9:15 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date are not of a stimulating nature, and there will be a tendency to let things drag, and the day's rightful business may be postponed. "Tomorrow" is an old deceiver and his cheat never grows stale. Health should be specially guarded.

Children born on this November 6th will be brilliantly successful, as boys and girls, but, as with most precocious children, their adult achievements will fall flat in comparison. They should be encouraged to go in for athletics, as they will always want their noses stuck in a book.

You are a very non-talkative being, and although not an ungrateful one, your silence is often misunderstood. Silent expression is always inferior in quality to spoken appreciation. You have an inconspicuous character, and court neither popularity nor unpopularity. You belong to the vast army of clean and sane and temperate livers—the best and most dependable citizens of your country.

Don't let SORE THROAT get the best of you...

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel less sore! Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Seattle Plans Giant Power Project

The diagram at the right shows Seattle's giant new hydro-electric project on the Skagit river the Gorge and Diablo dams having already been completed. At the left is the Gorge powerhouse, having a capacity of 75,000 horsepower now and 320,000 ultimately. Below is Superintendent J. D. Ross. The map shows the location of the big project.

(If not the most conspicuous.) There is much stubbornness revealed in your character, and you often hang on to an idea long after you should let go of it. This trait is probably your weakest one. You hate to outwardly admit that you are ever in the wrong, although your errors may be staring you in the face.

You are morally very upright, almost a prig—the animalism in your nature is pretty well conquered. You are capable of very sincere, clean emotions, as expressed in your love for children and for animals. You are always sorry for the "under dog," and go to his assistance if it be possible. Men born on a November 6th are fitted for agricultural pursuits, and should never attempt to lead sedentary existence. You will make good where patience and industry are essential. You are not a promoter or a speculator, and although the fruits of your efforts may be modest, they will always be sure. You are too retiring to make friends easily, but you are very loyal to those few whom you have.

Baby Of One Year Needs Tooth Brush, Doctors Say

Madison — A tooth brush for a baby, one year old, was recommended by medical authorities here today. Although only the first teeth have appeared and the eye teeth will not appear for several months later, the health of the child can be aided by taking care of the teeth at one year of age.

"When the baby is one year old, he should have twelve teeth; and it is about this time that he should have his first tooth brush and his training in the care of his mouth and teeth should begin," declares the Health Bulletin to mothers issued by the State Medical Society here today.

"Keep them just as white and shiny as when they first appeared. The child soon becomes accustomed to having his teeth brushed after each meal, and as he grows, this routine will become a part of his life. He should be encouraged as early as possible to brush his own teeth and so create the habit at an early age."

"A great many people do not believe that it is necessary to care for the baby teeth because, so they reason, the child will soon lose them and gain a good set of teeth in their stead."

"This mistaken conception has caused a great deal of unnecessary suffering and serious after results that could have been prevented so easily. Of course the baby teeth will all be gone usually by the time the child is twelve years of age, but the fact that these teeth were put there for a purpose and that some of them are going to stay even that long, makes it necessary that we make every effort to keep them as healthy and free from decay as possible. Aside from this, the premature loss of one of these little teeth results oftentimes, in a serious deformity of the face and jaws as well as a serious crippling of the child's chewing machinery at a time in his life when it is most vitally needed."

"These baby teeth are grinders to prepare all of the child's food for its reception into the stomach. If they are diseased by decay so that the child cannot properly masticate his food or if they are prematurely lost, the digestive organs are seriously handicapped. They also hold the space in the mouth until the permanent teeth are ready to erupt, and every time that a baby tooth is prematurely lost, it has a direct bearing on the position in the mouth that the permanent tooth which replaces it will take.

"When it is necessary to extract a baby tooth long before the permanent tooth should erupt, or when the baby tooth is badly broken down by decay, the teeth on each side of such a space will close together decreasing the space that was formerly occupied by the baby tooth and making it much more difficult for the permanent tooth to come into its proper place. This is often the cause of a crowded, irregular condition of the permanent teeth."

FIVE-DAY WEEK FOR CZECHS
Bata, Czechoslovakia's largest shoe manufacturer, has just inaugurated a new working schedule of a five-day week of 45 hours in its factories. It replaces the former six-day week of 48 hours. Wages and prices of shoes will not be changed, the company announces.

A CHILD'S COUGH

Demands Five Things

Never let a child's cough go one day without treatment. A cough is not only distressing, and weakening, but may develop into something serious. Most coughs are stopped quickly if treated in time. The moment a child begins coughing give him good, dependable old "Piso's for Coughs."

Piso's does the five things necessary to stop a cough and repair the damage done. It checks the cough spasm, loosens the mucus, opens the air passages, soothes the inflamed tissues and at the same time, has a tonic effect that tends to build up what the cough tears down. Only Piso's supplies these five vital effects and it contains no opiates and does not upset the stomach. Safe to give, even to babies. All druggists sell Piso's in 35c and 60c sizes. Ask for "Piso's for Coughs". adv.
